Nixon Sees Historic Trip To China As 'A Beginning'

'Instant Solutions' Not Seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon said today he does not expect his China visit to produce "instant solutions to deep-seated differences" but described the historic journey as "a beginning."

In a national radio broadcast before submitting his U.S. foreign policy report to Congress, Nixon added that "now, in relations between our countries, the old exchange of denunciation can be replaced with a constructive exchange of views."

The President said in the 15-minute address: "For the first time in a generation, the most powerful nation in the world and the most populous nation in the world —the United States and the People's Republic of China —have begun a process of communication."

The President will arrive in Peking on Feb. 21 for the momentous week-long stay.

He also spoke of "positive steps toward peace in the past year" that made a meeting with Soviet officials timely, "particularly in arms limitation and economic cooperation."

"That is why, for the first time, a President of tye United States will visit Moscow," Nixon said. "I will go to that meeting in May with no naive illusions but with some reasonable expectations."

His broadcast speech contained many of the same points he made in his 236-page State of the World message to Congress in which he said that failure to negotiate a settlement of the Vietnam war was his biggest disappointment of 1971.

In his broadcast, the President remarked of the war: "It began long before I became President and I have been doing everything I can honorably do to end it."

At the same time, Nixon urged that rival presidential candidates in the 1972 election year be temperate in discussing the war issue.

"I have no complaint over the fact that during this period when we have been ending the war I did not begin, I have been subjected to vigorous criticism," he said. "I do not question the patriotism or the sincerity of those who disagree with my policies to bring peace."

But he said, "I would hope that anyone seeking the presidency would examine his statements carefully to be certain that nothing he says might give the enemy an incentive to prolong the war until after the election."

The written message described last year as a "watershed year' because of breakthroughs in relations with both China and Russia.

On efforts to end the Vietnam War, the President wrote: "In our view, there is only one fundamental issue left. Will we collude with our enemies to overturn our friends? Will we impose a future on the Vietnamese people that the other side has been unable to gain

REMAINS OF TAMALPAIS VALLEY HOUSE

Lt. Kenneth Fowler of the Tamalpais Valley Fire Department looks at what's left of a hillside house at 858 Marin Drive, which was destroyed by fire early today. The occupant, James Withworth, made his way to safety when flames erupted by crawling out a back bedroom window and over the roof of the house to safety: A pet dog perished. The loss was put at more than $70,000. Firemen, misdirected by a caller, reached the home after it had been engulfed in flames.

New County Courthouse Sale Offer

The Marin County Board of Supervisors tossed a new offer onto the bargaining table yesterday in hope of speeding along sale of the old county courthouse site in San Rafael. (Other supervisor's stories, page 8.)

The proposal, suggested by Supervisor John F. McInnis, lops off $100,000 from the sale price of $750,000 offered to the City of San Rafael — provided the city agrees to keep part of the site as a park.

The new offer came as supervisors discussed the latest round of negotiations in which the county offered to give the city a two-year option to buy the site at a minimum price of $750,000.

Under that offer, the city could keep the site or sell it to private investors with any profit above the $750,000 to be split with the county.

The new offer carries the same profit-split proposal (anything above $650,000) but locks the city into maintaining a downtown park along Fourth Street.

The board's negotiators, Chairman Peter R. Arrigoni and Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste, will carry the offer back to the negotiating table along with board support for the other proposal if the city backs away from maintaining another park.

Negotiations for sale of the site have been on and off between county and city since the property was first put on the market seven years ago.

Novatan Will Seek Demo Assembly Bid

Harry J. Moore, principal of Hill Junior High School in Novato, announced today he is a candidate for the Seventh District Assembly seat covering Marin and Sonoma counties.

The 42-year-old principal has served on the Marin Community College District board, the Novato Parks and Recreation Commission and the Marin County Fair board.

He currently is campaign director of the Marin March of Dimes and vice president of the Forest Park Homeowners Association.

Moore said his candidacy is based on his belief that "people want revitalization of the legislative process." Many of our governmental institutions have grown unresponsive to citizens' needs, he said. "The present legislative machinery is in need of reapir and is not able to keep up with the rising wave of public awareness."

Trimaran At Port; Crew Not Found

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A capsized, 42-foot trimaran yacht belonging to Sausalito sculptor David S. Brooks, 32, was towed to Fort Point last night after being found derelict in the Pacific Ocean. 140 miles southwest of the Golden Gate.

Coast Guard searchers failed to find any trace of Brooks or his nephew Robert, 19, the only persons who had been aboard.

The two men had been near the end of a year-long voyage that had taken them to Costa Rica and many Mexican ports, according to Robert's father, Richard S. Brooks of San Francisco. The trimaran, Far Horizons, had sailed from Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, homeward-bound on Dec. 5.

A freighter's crew sighted the vessel Monday. The Coast Guard cutter Fort Heyer originally intended to tow the trimaran to Yerba Buena Island, but put in at Fort Point instead because the Far Horizons was sinking.

Richard Brooks said his brother had built the vessel, using "very advanced design." He said he and the sculptor's wife Barbara, who has been living in Southern California during her husband's voyage, "haven't given up hope" that the two sailors may still be alive.

Two Sought In Welfare Fraud—$1,000 A Month

A couple who managed to bring home an income of more than $1,000 during one month last year by obtaining welfare in four counties, including Marin, was being sought today on criminal charges.

Marin Deputy Dist. Atty. Milton M. Hyams today filed felony welfare fraud counts against Jim G. and Margaret Colcord, whose address is unknown.

Hyams said that during April 1971 the .lcords, who are from Alaska, obtained aid for their three young children in Marin, Stanislaus, Santa Clara and Sonoma Counties.

On April 8, Hyams said, the

Belvedere's Calm May Be Near End

The fearful rich may descend in hordes on tiny Belvedere when a new book, "Safe Places," is published next month.

According to an advance report in the National Observer, Belvedere is named in the book as one of 47 places in the U.S. "where calm and peace prevail" and where residents live without fear.

The book is written by David and Holly Franke of New Jersey. According to the National Observer, they found Belvedere the only San Francisco suburb "that combines two important qualities: it's not on the San Andreas Fault, thus reducing earthquake dangers, and its crime rate is low in all seven categories used by the Frankes — murder, rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, larceny and auto theft."

But, the weekly newspaper warned its readers, "bring money. The Frankes found no Belvedere homes selling for less than $55,000."

Belvedere residents who may want to move to equally safe co munities might choose among other cities named by the Frankes, such as Ogallala, Neb.; Fairhope, Ala., or Red Lodge, Mont.

Marin City Land Feud Still In Air

Wallace K. Shepherd, executive director of both the Marin County Housing Authority and Redevelopment Agency, said the groups met in joint session and agreed to a week's delay in signing papers opening the way for an exchange of property in the Southern Marin community.

Shepherd said the postponement came at the request of the county board of supervisors, which indicated yesterday it wanted members of the Marin City community who oppose the exchange to present their proposals at the joint meeting last night.

Shepherd said Rev. Samuel Banks Jr., chairman of the Marin City Council, spoke at the meeting but made no new suggestion for dealing with the long-standing controversy.

Still, he said, the housing and redevelopment groups agreed to a week's delay before signing papers that would turn over to California Development Co. 167 acres of ridgeland property in exchange for lowland acreage

Cove Land Compromise Reached

By GEORGE NEVIN

A condemnation suit which has tied up construction of 72 apartments on Strawberry Cove since November 1970 will be dropped by the Strawberry Recreation District under terms of a compromise, the Independent-Journal has learned.

The decision, reached behind closed doors Monday, means Paul J. Broman's plan to construct the apartments on a 6.7-acre parcel — a plan long opposed by conservationists and local residents — has cleared its next-to-last hurdle.

Only a limited ban on new sewer hookups now pjevents the controversial development from being buiLt. The ban wa: imposed by the Regional Water Quality Control Board last June.

The three members of the recreation district board present Monday — chairman Carl L. Schaefer, vice chairman Arthur R. Senter and Manuel K. Lehua — voted unanimously for the settlement and told the district's attorney, Stephen H. Kaufmann, to prepare a press release.

Kaufmann was tied up in court on another case yesterday and this morning and could not be reached. The directors refused to discuss the terms of the settlement.

The Independent-Journal learned, however, that it involves not only the public access guaranteed under the provisions of approval of the Bay Conservation and Development Commission, but also additional concessions by Broman, who has an option on the property From its owner, Leonard B. Fleischman of Belvedere.

The new concessions include an additional walkway from Seminary Drive across the south part of the property to the cove, ending in an overlook with benches.

The district alyo has agreed to purchase submerged property owned by Isabel M. Throwell which lies in the shallow waters of the cove, thus preventing it from being developed.

Broman agreed to dedicate to the recreation district title to a one-acre peninsula on the north side of the cove for recreation and either landscape it or pay the district $2,500.

Under the terms of the BCDC approval granted Nov. 4, that peninsula, as well as two acres of submerged land and a pedestrian and bicycle path up to 35 feet wide around the project's perimeter were to be dedicated to the public.

The only thing now standing in the way of Broman's plans is a scarcity of sewer connection permits available in the Ricardo Road Watershed of the

Protesters Admit Failure In Belfast

Dock Workers Caucus Saturday

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Leaders of longshore locals at 24 Pacific ports will caucus here Saturday to review and act on a tentative contract to end the 123-day West Coast dock strike.

Negotiators for the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union and the Pacific Maritime Association announced Tuesday that all economic issues were settled and other disagreements would be submitted to arbitration.

Both the 15,000 striking ILWU workers and tye 122-member PMA must approve the proposed contract.

Legalize Marijuana, Says Former Top Drug Agent

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The former No. 2 man in the government's drug enforcement agency came out today for legalization of marijuana.

John Finlator, who retired Jan. 1 as deputy director of the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, said marijuana should be subject only to government regulation, much like alcohol or tobacco.

Finlator issued his statement through the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws. He said he was joining NORML in an effort to change marijuana laws.

Under legislation passed last year by Congress, penalties for trafficking in marijuana were stiffened, but minimum penalties for simple possession were eliminated, allowing a judge to release a person with only a fine or a reprimand for only possession.

Finlator said many drugs are harmful and their use should continue to be illegal.

"But drugs such as cigarettes, alcohol and marijuana are different," he said. "Their potential harm is limited, and

Nixon Strike Power Plea Has Support

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon has found an unexpected reservoir of support in the Senate for his controversial request for power to stop transportation strikes that cripple the nation.

Irritated by a succession of strikes, in critical industries that Congress has been forced to settle individually, the Senate came within three votes Tuesday of giving the President the broadest powers to deal with emergency strikes since the Taft-Hartley Act became law.

The 42 to 39 vote by which Nixon's plan was tabled was far closer than expected and put pressure on the Senate Labor Committee to not elay and produce an emergency strike bill this year.

AGAINST PLAN

Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., who sponsored the Nixon proposal, said if he had had a few days to rally support, the measure would have passed. As it was, opponents were barely able to summon a majority to stop it even though both industry and labor were on record strongly against the plan.

"There is a growing sense of irritation in the Senate," Packwood said. "It may be an awareness that the public has had it."

Like the plan Nixon submitted to Congress in 1969, Packwood's amendment would have used a device called "final offer selection" to impose a settlement when labor and management have reached an impasse. This would involve the appointment of a three-man arbitration panel to choose between the final bargaining positions of the two sides.

The advantage of this approach over compulsory arbitration, Packwood said, was that both sides would be under a compulsion to submit a reasonable agreement.

NEW FOODS

The Packwood amendment also would have given the president two other new tools he had sought: an extra 15-day "cooling off period" od" in addition to the 90 days provided by the Taft-Hartley Act and the option of requiring partial operation of the industry involved to move essential goods and services.

Packwood's proposal was introduced as an amendment to legislation which passed later by a 79 to 3 vote to give the President temporary powers to force an end to a 123-day West Coast dock strike.

As the bill was being debated, longshoremen and shippers reached agreement on a new contract to end the strike. The cumpulsory arbitration feature of that bill would thus be needed only if rank-and-file longshoremen reject the settlement this weekend.

The House may take up the Senate-passed bill today, and could have it on President Nixon's desk before Congress adjourns for a four-day Lincoln's Birthday recess this evening.

ORDEAL AT END — Nick Galanis, 13, of Salt Lake City, shown after end to 22-hour kidnap ordeal. Nick had been kidnaped from near his school and taken to Riverside by a Las Vegas man, Kimball R. Vance, 42. Police traced the pair to a motel room yesterday after Nick's younger brother was able to identify the kidnap car for police. Vance had demanded $35,000 in ransom. (UPI Telephoto)

Fears Tet Under Way As Reds In Swarm Of Attacks

SAIGON (UPI)—The U.S. and South Vietnamese commands reported 41 Communist attacks against U.S. and allied bases since Tuesday morning, and a South Vietnamese spokesman in Saigon said today it is possible the threatened Communist Tet offensive had begun.

The American command ordered the aircraft carrier Constellation to cut short a port leave in Hong Kong two days ahead of schedule and speed back to the Gulf of Tonkin to rejoin the Coral Sea and the Hancock for action in event of major Communist strikes.

The 41 attacks included the heaviest rocket attack against Da Nang in more than three years, wounding 10 Americans and damaging four buildings. The Communists also fired rockets at Freedom Hill, a base on the outskirts, and at artillery base Linda, 12 miles southwest of Da Nang.

UPI correspondent Don Davis reported from Pleiku in the Central Highlands that North Vietnamese and Viet Cong fired mortars and rockets today into two big South Vietnamese bases taken over from the Americans during the past year. They were former Camp Radcliff, guarding Route 19, and Phu Cat, a nearby militia training center. The Phu Cat air base was taken over by the South Vietnamese in December.

A South Vietnamese command spokesman in Saigon, commenting on the Central Highlands fighting, said, "It is possible that the enemy high point, or offensive, has begun." A spokesman for Gen. Cao Van Vien, commander of Saigon's armed forces, said, "If the spate of attacks continues for another day or two, it means the offensive is underway."

U.S. spokesmen in Da Nang, 370 miles north of Saigon, predicted more attacks but said "we don't expect any really large-scale attacks, but we think there'll be a lot of shellings and some sapper attacks."

Allied intelligence officers have been predicting a major Communist offensive around the highlands timed for the Feb. 15 Tet lunar new year and President Nixon's Feb. 21 trip to China. They said they would call a 24-hour cease-fire for Tet despite previous violations. The Communists announced some weeks ago they would call a three-day ceasefire then.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Virginia Schools

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Virginia won a temporary stay Tuesday of a landmark federal court order that would erase city-county lines to merge Richmond's 70-per cent black school system with 90-per cent white suburban schools.

The U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals ordered a full hearing on the issue for April 10 but told school authorities to proceed with plans for the merger in the event it is upheld.

U-TAPAO AIR BASE, Thailand (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth of Britain arrived today for the start of a six-week tour of seven Asian nations. The queen's jetliner touched down at an air base where U.S. B52s were landing and taking off for raids on Indochina.

The queen, accompanied by her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh and their daughter, Princess Anne, landed at the U-Tapao Air Base 90 miles south of Bangkok.

New Egypt Plan

CAIRO (UPI) — The semioffical newspaper Al Ahram said today Egyptian officials are working on a new plan to confront Israel following President Anwar Sadat's recent visit to Moscow. It did not say if the confrontation meant on the battlefield or at the conference table.

Sadat indicated before his Russian visit that his talks with Kremlin leaders would enable him to set a zero hour for war with Israel, but statements on his return concentrated on the possibility of a peaceful settlement.

Sadat is to meet representatives of Egypt's only political party, the Arab Socialist Union, and other constitutional organizations to explain the results of his trip, government sources said.

England Emergency

LONDON (UPI) — The government today proclaimed a national state of emergency. It took the step, including authority to impose electricity blackouts and use troops, to conserve dwindling fuel supplies in a nationwide coal miners' strike now in its fifth week.

The proclamation was signed at a specially convened meeting of the Privy Council. In the absence of Queen Elizabeth in the Far East, the council was presided over by her mother, Queen Mother Elizabeth, and her sister, Princess Margaret.

Waldheim's Mission

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Secretary General Kurt Waldheim said Tuesday that preventive diplomacy, like preventive medicine, often is necessary to handle a crisis before it is too late.

Waldheim said he planned to make it his mission to restore the public's confidence in the United Nations.

Waldheim, the Austrian diplomat who succeeded Thant of Burma on Jan. 1, said he would not hesitate to initiate Security Council action on a situation he thought critical — a move taken only once before.

Irving Before Jury

NEW YORK (UPI) — Clifford Irving, author of a disputed "autobiography" of Howard Hughes, agreed Tuesday to submit handwriting samples to a federal grand jury but reportedly balked at answering a number of other questions.

Irving's wife, Edith, who made her first appearance before the jury, also agreed to provide handwriting specimens and apparently followed her husband's lead by invoking the Fifth Amendment against possible self-incrimination.

House Racist Charge

Diggs made the remark to Rarick during a hearing on home rule by the House District Committee. Rarick testified against proposals which would give District of Columbia residents the right to elect a mayor and a city council.

Diggs said the Louisiana Democrat opposes majority rule in Rhodesia, and "anywhere the majority is black."

Division Of Roads Hit: 'Inefficiency'

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The "Little Hoover Commission" has leveled more accusations at the state Department of Public Works, charging that the agency is tolerating "inefficiency and administrative insubordination."

The department is already under fire for allegedly misusing $100 million worth of land.

Manning J. Post, vice chairman of the commision, told a joint hearing of the Senate and Assembly transportation committees Tuesday that the Division of Highways has "ignored" problems and "the result has been a loss of millions of dollars to the taxpayers of the State of California."

"Inefficiency and administrative insubordination has been ignored by those with authority to take appropriate action," Post said.

The commission has charged the division with mismanaging $100 million worth of property, including $15 million in land the division did not have cataloged.

The land should be sold as soon as possible to return it to the tax rolls, the commission said.

Post said the department currently allows land to be "withheld from sale without justification and at the whim of engineers."

Show Backbone, Pay Board Urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, today urged the Pay Board to show some backbone in dealing with labor settlements which would be inflationary if not controlled.

An early challenge along those lines may come soon if longshoremen ratify the West Coast dock agreement reached Tuesday which call for pay increases well above the Pay Board's 5.5 per cent guidelines. But extenuating circumstances may allow the board to find a way to permit the increase to go into effect.

Burns, in testimony prepared for the House-Senate Economic Committee, stressed the "great importance" he attached to the Pay Board's resisting "pressures to reach compromises in specific cases that threaten to undermine its overall objective."

The Price Commission, on the other hand, he said, must show flexibility. "Its efforts to hold down prices must be pursued with the utmost vigor," he said, "and yet leave sufficient scope for confident and constructive business behavior."

Without that flexibility, he suggested, the Price Commission could slow the rapid economic expansion which he said is just as vital as achieving President Nixon's goal of bringing the rate of inflation down to 2 to 3 per cent by the end of this year.

In general, Burns gave a rosy picture of the economy now that Nixon has adopted the wage and price control path that Burns urged on him months before he did so on Aug. 15, 1971.

The freeze, he said, was "an outstanding success," helping to restore confidence which he saw reflected in increased expenditures by consumers and investments by business.

Despite the glow in his report, he said, "the deepseated economic problems we have been struggling with have not yet been solved" and "more — perhaps much more — remains to be done to restore the conditions for lasting prosperity."

Colcords, who are in their early 30s, arrived at the Department of Social Services in Marin and said they were living temporarily at 4136 Redwood Highway, San Rafael. They also said they expected to move soon to the Marin Hotel in San Rafael and had no income.

They were given $239 in aid by the Marin department.

However, social workers soon received a tip from their counterparts in Santa Clara County and checked both addresses and learned the couple had never been heard of at either one.

Further checking revealed the couple had applied for aid in Stanislaus County on March 31, giving a Modesto address, and had received $375 in welfare checks there for the month of April. They also applied in Santa Clara County, giving a San Jose address and got $239 for the same month, and in Sonoma County, where they said they lived in Santa Rosa, and received another $239.

The income of $1,092 for the month also was supplemented by food stamps, Hyams said.

Aid in all four counties was discontinued when the Colcords could not be located.

Hyams added that a check is being made to determine if the couple received aid in any other counties.

He filed a complaint today after several months investigation against the couple in municipal court and asked a $5,000 warrant to be issued for their arrest.

Nixon Sees Peking Trip As Only 'A Beginning'

militarily or politically? This we shall never do."

He again said that Americans "in significant numbers" will remain in South Vietnam until Hanoi releases U.S. prisoners of war.

He said "striking progress" made on the diplomatic front last year justified his decisions to hold summit meetings in Peking Feb. 21-28 and in Moscow late in May.

"My visit to Peking in February will not bring a quick resolution of the deep differences which divide us from the Peoples Republic of China," Nixon said. "But it will be a beginning, and it will signal the end of a sterile and barren interlude in the relationship between the two great peoples. Finally, it will represent a necessary and giant step toward the creation of a stable structure of world peace."

"Our purpose is to establish contact between the world's most powerful nation and the world's most populous nation and to confine our future confrontations to the conference table," he said.

"Contact now might help avert a disastrous catastrophe later. It could lead to cooperative ventures between our two countries in the future."

Nixon added that progress on both broad international issues and in relations with the Soviet Union created conditions "that justified a meeting between myself and the Soviet leaders."

"The progress that had been made gave promise that such a meeting could be successful and lead to additional progress," he said. "It ensured that a summit would not be an empty and self-deluding exercise in atmospherics."

But at the same time, he said that the United States faces "ambiguous and contradictory trends in Soviet policy" and he added that a continuing Russian military buildup "is one obvious source of deep concern."

Nixon said Soviet attitudes during the India-Pakistan war late last year "have dangerous implications for other regional conflicts, even though in the end the U.S.S.R. played a restraining role." The Soviet sided with India while the United States and China sided with Pakistan.

Nixon charged that during the crisis Moscow was "willing to make military moves to deter China." He did not disclose what kind of military action the Soviets were prepared to take to prevent active Peking intervention on Pakistan's side.

But Nixon said there was increasing willingness "to break with the traditional patterns of Soviet-American relations" and he expressed hope of making progress in several major areas when he goes to Moscow.

Among other things he said he expects to discuss with Soviet leaders the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT), the Middle East, European security and trade expansion.

Nixon's national security adviser, Henry A. Kissinger, told reporters he expected the SALT discussions would produce an agreement later this year on curbing defensive and offensive weapons.

Kissinger summed up the situation for reporters:

"In February of 1972, after many vicissitudes, many achievements and our separate evolution," Kissinger said, "The United States and China enter this dialogue on a fresh foundation of national equality and mutual respect. We are both turning a new page in our histories."

The President said he will travel to Peking without illusions, and added there will be no attempt to gloss over the differences. He expects the talks to be marked by "directness and candor."

He said his conversations with Chinese leaders will focus on bilateral questions, but either side is free to raise any questions.

Summarizing his voluminous, philosophical message, Nixon said:

"All we can say with certainty now is that a generation of peace is a more credible goal at the end of 1971 than it appeared to be at its beginning.

"It still may appear to be distant. It does not, however, still appear fanciful and utopian."

within the community which has gone undeveloped.

In negotiations in New York last month, California Development agreed to pay the Marin City community a portion of profits from ridgeland development and to allow resident participation in planning and developing the ridge.

Shepherd said today he was unaware what would be accomplished by a week's delay.

In other action last night, the redevelopment agency authorized itu staff to negotiate with Marin Transit Systems to enable the company to use a one-acre Marin City site for its headquarters and approved arranging an engineering study of drainage problems on redevelopment land in the community.

Richardson Bay Sanitary District.

Sea Port Development Co. has sued for rights to the 284 connections available for multiple housing units while two other developers, Martell J. and Raymond Kaliski and Vladimir J. Turski claim they have the right to the permits for their 202-unit Strawberry Hills development.

The suit has been taken under submission by Judge Henry J. Broderick of Marin Superior Court. If he rules in favor of the Kaliskis and Turski, enough permits would be available for Broman's project, provided he files completed plans with the Richardson Bay Sanitary District before Sea Port does.

The Strawberry Cove development has been bitterly opposed since it was first proposed more than 15 months ago. The original development, 102 units, was scaled down to 96 apartments, rejected by the BCDC last May on the grounds it did not provide maximum feasible public access to the cove, then scaled down to its present 72 units and finally approved.

Opponents, besides Strawberry residents, have included the Sierra Club, Save the Bay Association and the Save Strawberry Cove Committee. It was supported by the Marin County Labor Council, real estate interests and developers.

The suit by the recreation district was filed in November 1970 in Marin Superior Court. It claimed the public had an irrevocable right to an undeveloped cove because of more than five years of unimpeded access to the shoreline.

Tiburon Pulls Back Annex Plans

The City of Tiburon has temporarily withdrawn its so-called Strawberry shoreline annexation from the hearing agenda of the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission.

City Mgr. Bert A. Balmer explained today that the city requested cancellation of the commission's scheduled Feb. 16 hearing on the annexation because the largest landowner involved wants the city to prezone his property before annexation.

Balmer said that the owner, Robert Weber, will submit master plan proposals for his Strawberry Point holdings soon. The prezoning procedure may take more than the 70 days the local agency commission could continue its hearings, so the city withdrew the annexation application, Balmer explained. He said the city would submit the proposal again, probably in June.

Meanwhile, another Tiburon annexation, the so-called Eagle Rock area, still is on the county panel's agenda for Feb. 16, Balmer said.

The 411-acre Strawberry shoreline parcel includes the Town and Country shopping center, Sea Port Strawberry Cove and De Silva Island. It is considered technically uninhabited area because fewer than 12 registered voters live there so no annexation election would be needed.

'Sounding Board' Topic: Taxes

"Taxes and what to do about them" will be the topic of a discussion at 9 a.m. tomorrow on radio KTIM's "Main Sounding Board."

Speakers will be Donald M. Van Dyke, a director of the Marin County Taxpayers Association; two members of the Irate Taxpayers Association, Sarah Nome, president, and Judy Emis, secretary, and a fourth panelist to be announced.

The program will be repeated Sunday at 9:50 a.m.

falls within that area which the people of this country have apparently decided is acceptable."

He said both alcohol and tobacco had proved to be more harmful than marijuana.

Finlator said in an interview with the Washington Star that jailing youths for smoking marijuana "is just as wrong as hell."

"Dammit, it's wrong," he exclaimed. "I know I'm the first lawman of my stature to speak out, but it's about time."

The Star said Finlator's nickname in the BNDD was "supernarc." He said in the interview he personally had never smoked marijuana.

Finlator said in his statement that his experience during several years of dealing with the problem indicated criminal laws would never solve the marijuana problem.

"Regardless of one's view toward marijuana, the ineffectiveness of the criminal laws as a deterrent to use is astounding," he said. "Meanwhile, we have ruined the careers and lives of hundreds of thousands of otherwise law abiding citizens by needlessly subjecting them to the ramifications of being defined criminal."

Summers To Be Free For Awhile

Plans for extending the school calendar to 12 months in the 1972-73 school year were shelved last night by the Petaluma Board of Education.

Dr. Dan E. Montgomery, director of the extended school year study, said the steering committee recommended that no major change be made in the traditional two-semester calendar for next year because more time is needed to study the effects.

Montgomery said additional time would be needed to study various plans available to extend the school year to make better use of school facilities and that more research must be done on finances. He said more information will be available at a national conference in San Diego on Feb. 22, 23 and 24 to assist the committee.

He said that crowding had not yet become a critical problem in the Petaluma High School District and that a delay in starting any plan would not be harmful. Montgomery said he would return to the board on March 14 with a schedule for completing the study.

More than 50 parents attended the meeting, but few made comment. Otto Horst, 501 Petersen Lane, gave the board A petition signed by 155 persons opposing any plan that would set mandatory attendance on a year'round basis. Horst defended the traditional school year with its long summer vacations and said any major departure would make drastic changes in the mode of life of many people.

The Petaluma Board of Education also:

MOBILE HOMES — Agreed to send a letter to the Petaluma City Council restating its opposition to the proliferation of mobile home parks because less tax money is received from them than conventional homes. The city council recently agreed to rezone additional land to accommodate as many as 800 more mobile homes.

DESIGN PLAN — Directed a letter to the Petaluma Planning Commission supporting a provision in the proposed environmental design plan to require subdividers to demonstrate that school facilities will not be strained by development.

EMPLOYMENT — Hired and set salaries for teachers John Hart, $3,394 and Susan Yates, $3,525.

BONDS — Approved a resolution supporting Proposition No. 2 on the June 6 primary ballot to provide $350 million in state school bonds.

Ross Will Deal With Creek Issue

What to do about a court decision yesterday on the Corte Madera Creek Flood Control Project will be discussed by the Ross Town Council at its regular meeting tomorrow.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court ruled the town must either repeal approval of the final phase of the project or put the issue to the voters.

The proposed concrete duct from near the Ross Post Office almost to the San Anselmo border was approved by the council last July. A petition for a referendum was subsequently filed, but the Town Atty., Robert W. Elliott said the decision was not subject to a public vote. Judge Wilson ruled otherwise.

The council will meet at 8 p.m. in the town hall and will also discuss subdivision of 5.4 acres on Winding Way and a use permit sought to allow use of a garage apartment as a guest house and servant's quarters.

New Look Likely For Hub Bus Depot

San Anselmo's bus depot, closed last month when the Golden Gate Bridge District took over commuter bus routes from Greyhound, may reopen, freshly-painted with a pop art design and with a shop inside to sell local artwork to help subsidize the station.

The building would be repainted and the art concession put in as part of a plan developed by San Anselmo City Councilman Lewis W. Stewart. Stewart presented the plan to the council last night, and will work out further details and present it to the Senior Coordinating Council, which had run the bus depot before it closed, for its approval.

The new image was needed, Stewart told the council, because the depot was "one of the most gloomy, depressing waiting rooms in Marin County." In order for it to be more popular, and especially to attract a retail outlet to help with the rent on the building, it would have to be repainted.

Stewart's proposed design, which was done free by a design firm, depicts the bus terminal renamed "Bustop" and painted blue with bold yellow and black stripes forming a design on the front and sides of the building.

An art group from Sir Francis Drake High School in San Anselmo has agreed to supply art goods on consignment. The owner of the building has agreed to buy the paint.

Stewart proposed that the action be taken in lieu of subsidizing the station with city money, in league with the Golden Gate Bridge District and Marin County Transit District.

No date was set for presentation of the plan to the Senior Coordincating Council.

The San Anselmo City Council Also:

HOUSING — Set March 7 as a meeting date to discuss goals and composition of a Citizen's Advisory Committee for the housing element of a general plan.

BENCHES — Accepted a $50 donation by the San Anselmo Tennis Club for new benches for the San Anselmo Memorial Park Tennis courts after they are resurfaced. Cost of the material for the benches is estimated at $125, and the council postponed the decision on where to get the additional money.

APPOINTMENTS — Named Harry L. Belgrade of 48 Monterey Avenue to the library board and John A. Levo Of 94 Spring Grove Avenue, to the planning commission. The term will expire on Aug. 18 of this year.

Theft, Embezzlement Charges Dropped

Charges of vehicle theft and embezzlement against Sol Owens, 38, no known address, were dismissed yesterday in Marin Municiapl Court by Judge Peter Allen Smith after it was learned the victim didn't wish to press charges.

Owens had been arrested last month on a warrant charging he had borrowed a pickup truck from a Mill Valley man in 1970 and had never returned it. It was reported yesterday that the truck has been given back to the owner, who did not want to proceed with the case.

Rec Board Asks Funds For Planning

The Strawberry Recreation District board has asked the Marin County Board of Supervisors for $5,000 in matching funds to pay for a master plan for the Strawberry area.

A committee of residents has been working with Harvey M. Bragdon, county chief of current planning, on the master plan but soon will need technical advice from a consultant, according to David E. Roberts, recreation manager for the district.

The board Monday asked the county to appropriate $5,000 in the 1972-73 budget for the plan. The district also will put up $5,000.

Directors also approved spending $4,311 for repairs to the bathhouse by the district swimming pool and delayed a decision on replacing a retired board member.

Roberts said three persons — former director James L. Andrews of 296 Ricardo Road, Pat Jeremiah of 109 Richardson Drive and Jane K. Brown of 140 Richardson Drive — have been nominated to replace James K. Garner, who resigned last month due to ill health.

Behr Seeks Land Study Of Prison

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Legislation to prevent sale of San Quentin Prison before considering its conversion to public use was proposed today by Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael.

His bill would require the state first to study "the possible public uses to which the property, or portions thereof, could be put for the maximum benefit and enjoyment of the People of California."

The study by the General Services Department would be required to "give particular consideration" to use of the 440-acre site as a park, recreation area, wildlife refuge or archeological or historic site.

The total acreage includes 191 acres of tidelands, or 43 per cent of the total, and 12,000 feet of bay shoreline.

Gov. Ronald Reagan last month called for the 120-year-old maximum security prison to be phased out of operation by the end of 1974. Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post proposed last week that the prison be closed by the end of this year.

Behr praised the governor's announcement last month, saying the property would make an ideal bayside park. But he cautioned then that the General Services Department will be interested primarily in selling the property for commercial development.

Behr's bill would require the study to be completed by the start of the 1974 legislative session, or before disposal of the property if the prison closes sooner. The study would be required before any offer by the department to sell, lease, exchange or transfer the property.

Marin Municipal Water District already has asked Reagan to reserve some of the property for construction of a regional sewage treatment plant, but did not specify how much acreage would be needed.

NAACP In Rating Of Legislators

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Both of Marin's state legislators have been rated on their 1971 voting Records by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, was counted by the NAACP as having voted "with" it on 17 bills, "against" it on one bill, and not voting on three.

Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, was reported as having voted "with" the association on 13 bills, "against" it on one, and as not voting or absent on five.

The association has not yet released the list of bills on which it based its ratings.

Noise Pollution Standards Advance

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The House Commerce Committee has approved legislation design to cut down on noise pollution by setting government standards for allowable noise levels from various sources.

If cleared by Congress, the bill would require the Environmental Protection Agency to set noise levels for construction and transportation equipment, engines and electric and electronic equipment. "It is time," said Rep. Paul G. Rogers, D-Fla., "we began providing protection for workers in environmentally harmful noise situations."

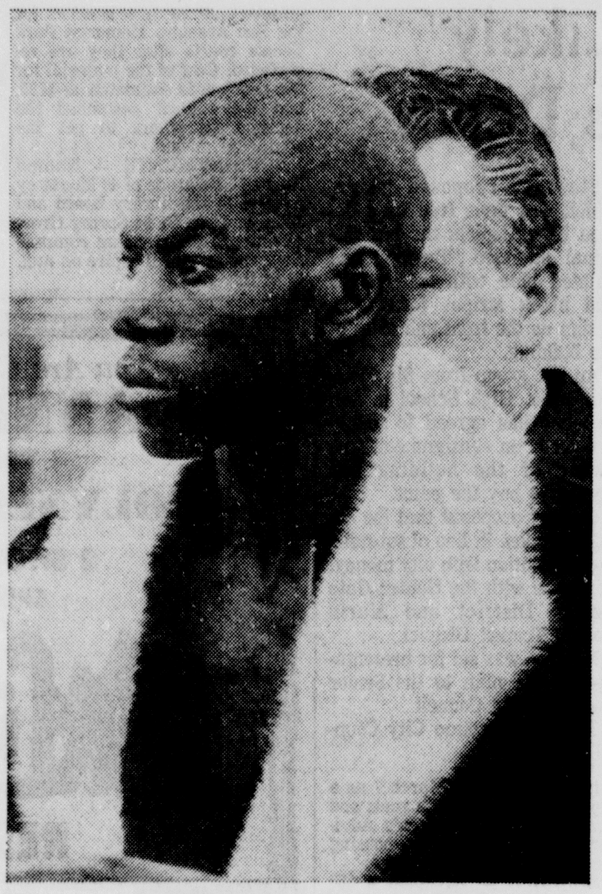
Larkspur City Council Hopefuls Invited To Talk

The Larkspur Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a candidates' night for Larkspur City Council candidates, at 7:30 p.m. March 23 in Henry C. Hall School, according to Sue Schaefer, chamber president.

Chamber members approved the candidate plans yesterday, at their first luncheon meeting of the year.

The members also approved plans to honor — for the first time —Larkspur's policeman, fireman and citizen of the year, at the annual Twin Cities Fourth of July celebration.

Marcia Greil, work experience coordinator for the Marin County schools office, spoke on career training in the schools.



WILD DRIVER IN COURT

Curtis Latta, 31, of Detroit, is escorted to a car by a Wayne County sheriff's deputy after pleading innocent at his arraignment to charges of chasing a Boeing 747 down a runway at Detroit Metropolitan Airport, smashing seven vehicles during a 45-minute high speed chase and attempting to run down a deputy before being subdued. Following his court appearance yesterday, he was held in jail in lieu of bail. (UPI Telephoto)

Marin's Plea To Tax Sports Tickets Rejected

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill proposed by the Marin County Board of Supervisors to tax tickets To sporting events to finance purchase of open space has been rejected by the county's state legislators.

Sen. Peter H. Behr and Assemblyman William T. Bagley, both R-San Rafael, objected that the proposal was unfair to sports fans, bad tax policy and never could pass the Legislature.

The board of supervisors has proposed a special tax on gate receipts of sporting events to be used solely for open space acquisition by state and local governments.

Behr criticized the measure on the ground it would levy a tax on sporting events "for basically unrelated purposes."

Bagley branded the proposal "an old turkey. It's been tried and tried, and Marin County isn't going to buck the whole sports world, much less the patrons."

Auto Is Stolen

A 1954 gray Volkswagen sedan was stolen between 2:30 and 7:30 a.m. yesterday from a driveway at the rear of the residence of its owner, David P. Smith of 292½ Butterfield Road, San Anselmo police reported today.

Vote Record Legislation Is Backed

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A majority of the Senate's 40 members has signed as coauthors to legislation proposed by Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, to require public recording of committee votes.

Behr reported yesterday that 20 of his upper house colleagues now were backing his proposal, SCR 4, which will be heard next Wednesday by the Senate Rules Committee at 9:30 a.m. in Room 5007 of the Capitol.

Nineteen of the 80 Assembly members also have signed as coauthors, including William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael. The assemblyman, however, said that the measure's main impact will be in the Senate, claiming that many committee votes in the lower house already are subjected to roll call balloting.

Behr's measure also would require publication of all committee votes in the daily journals for each house.

Zink Now Working For Union In Guam

Fired Sausalito Police Sgt. Thomas H. Zink, ordered reinstated in December by a Marin Superior Cout judge, has been transferred to Guam by his current employer, Zink's attorney revealed yesterday.

James B. Leech said Zink and his family left Marin about two weeks ago for the island where he will work as representative for Local 3 of the Operating Engineers Union. The former policeman has been employed with the union for almost a year.

Zink was dismissed by the city in May 1970 on a variety of charges, the most serious being emotional instability and inability to maintain a satisfactory relationship with subordinate officers.

He appealed the firing in hearings in December 1970 before state hearing officer Paul A. Winton who later ruled there was insufficient evidence to support the important charges against him.

After obtaining a transcript of the entire hearings for study, the Sausalito City Council voted unanimously in September to uphold the dismissal.

On Dec. 23, Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson ordered the city to reinstate Zink, but demote him to patrolman. At the time the judge declared the council, which accepted the findings of the hearing officer while upholding the dismissal, had abused its discretion in firing rather than demoting the policeman.

$5,000 Reward In Bomb Case

STANFORD (UPI) —More than 200 Stanford University professors have pledged $5,000 as a reward for information leading to the conviction of those responsible for placing a firebomb outside the home of a colleague.

The group, which included more than a fifth of the Academic Council, made the pledge as they condemned recent harassment of an advisory board which recommended the ouster of radical Professor H. Bruce Franklin.

A Molotov cocktail was found outside the home of board member Prof. Sanford Dornbusch on Feb. 1. It had not ignited.

Guilty Plea To Forgery

Debra Sheryl O'Bayley, 20, of San Rafael has pleaded guilty in Marin Superior Court to two charges of forging stolen checks at San Rafael pharmacies.

She is to be sentenced Feb. 28.

Mrs. O'Bayley was told she will probably be sent to a state hospital for drug treatment.

She was arrested by San Rafael police on Nov. 17 for passing checks stolen from another woman's purse.

Stinson Beach Center Reelects Reutinger

Otto Reutinger has been elected to a second term as president of the Stinson Beach Community Center, an organization which includes these groups: Allied Arts, Parent-Teacher Club, Stinson Beach Community Church, Stinson Beach Projects, Stinson Volunteer Fire Department and the Progressive Club of Stinson Beach.

Okay. Are we a restaurant, or an art gallery, or what. This question often gives our customers the opportunity to make smart remarks like the one above. The answer is that we are whatever you'd like us to be. If you like fine art better than eating, we are a fine art gallery. If, on the other hand, you'd rather eat than look at a lot of silly pictures, we're a fine continental restaurant. It's just a matter of taste. In either case, the taste is good.

Nixon Cautions Chief Viet Critics

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

President Nixon said today Democratic candidates for President should be careful to say nothing about the Vietnam War that might encourage the Communists to delay a peace settlement until after next November's election.

Nixon said he did not question the sincerity of those who are critical of his Vietnam policies.

"But a candidate for President has a higher responsibility than an ordinary critic," he said.

"I would hope that anyone seeking the presidency would examine his statements carefully to be certain that nothing he says might give the enemy an incentive to prolong the war until after the election."

Nixon made the remarks in a national radio address, arranged primarily to discuss his annual foreign policy message which he submitted to Congress today.

His statements about Democratic candidates came in connection with a growing controversy over attacks on his Jan. 25 Vietnam peace offer by some Democrats, particularly Sens. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, and George S. McGovern, D-S.D., two of the leading presidential contenders.

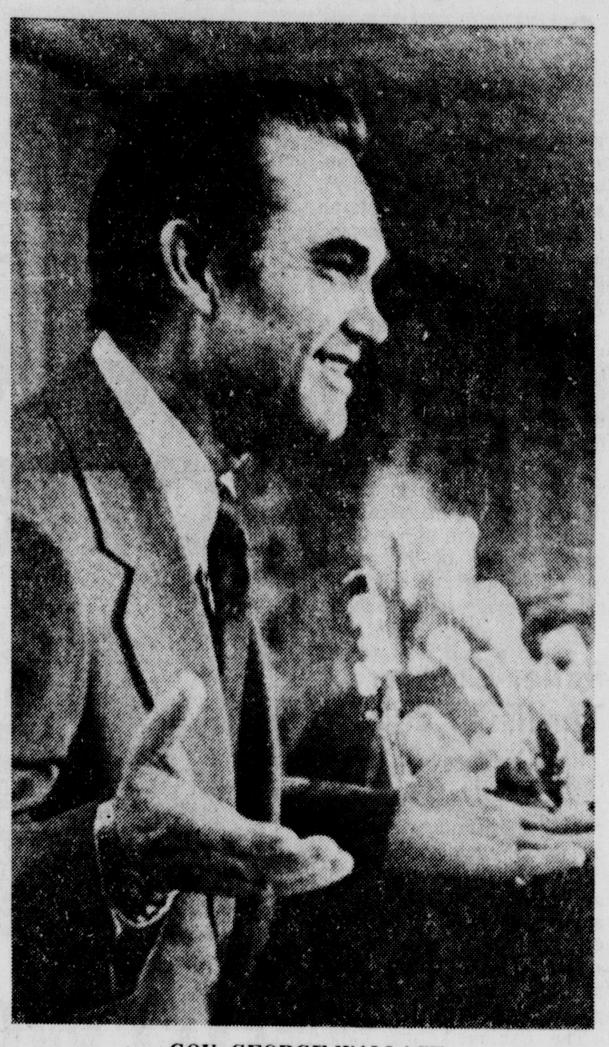
Nixon's national security adviser Henry A. Kissenger, who was the President's negotiator during months of secret talks With Communist representatives in Paris, also discussed political tactics with reporters.

During a briefing on the President's State of the World message, Kissinger this morning said he felt McGovern was willing to accept a Communist government in South Vietnam. But Kissinger said McGovern "holds these views with integrity and patriotism."

Kissinger said McGovern, in urging a speedy end to the war, "has stated the debate in the sharpest and most concrete form."

Kissinger said Nixon was determined to reject any political formula that would turn South Vietnam over to the Communists although the President was willing to negotiate on other issues.

Meanwhile, Samuel W. Yorty accused some of his rival Democratic presidential candidates today of unfair criticism of U.S. policy in Vietnam, and said their attacks were helping to prolong the war.



GOV. GEORGE WALLACE
Makes campaign pitch in Miami

(UPI Telephoto)

The Los Angeles mayor, campaigning in New Hampshire for the nation's first primary March 7, joined Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., in charging that some of the other Democratic aspirants were exploiting Americans' war weariness "with emotional appeals."

Jackson also criticized Democrats who attacked the Nixon proposals.

Yorty, in an interview on New Hampshire's state television network, suggested that the Communist negotiators might be hoping for a Muskie or McGovern victory over Nixon next November.

In other political developments:

Maryland's secretary of state, Fred L. Wineland, said that he would allow presidential candidates to remove their names from the state's May 16 primary ballot simply by saying they were not candidates in that state, even if they entered other primaries before or after Maryland's election.

Massachusetts' secretary of state, John F. X. Davoren, said 12 Democrats including George C. Wallace would appear on that state's April 25 primary ballot.

In Miami, Wallace said that he was not able to accept a challenge to debate New York Mayor John V. Lindsay because his schedule is already too tight.

Following the lead of United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock who has personally endorsed Muskie, the UAW Michigan state organization also endorsed the Maine senator.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey,D-Minn., campaigning at Jacksonville, Fla., called for major changes in the nation's tax structure to close loopholes that he said result in an annual revenue loss of $18 billion. At the same time, he strongly opposed the so-called value-added tax being considered by the administration, saying it would add to the cost of living and penalize low and middle income earners.

Earlier Humphrey denied a CBS television report that he was so unhappy with his national campaign staff that he was considering withdrawing. "Hubert Humphrey isn't pulling out, Hubert Humphrey is pulling ahead," he said.

In another development Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans, who leaves the Nixon cabinet Tuesday to become chief fund-raiser for Nixon's reelection campaing, believes Vice President Spiro T. Agnew will be on the Republican ticket again this year.

"It's my feeling that it's going to be Agnew. The President doesn't want to break up a winning team," he told reporters yesterday.

Admissions To CYA On Decline

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California Youth Authority director Allen F. Breed has reported that admissions to CYA institutions declined in 1971 for the sixth consecutive year.

Breed said Tuesday 3,218 offenders were admitted to CYA institutions for the first time last year, a decrease of 14.1 per cent from 1970. Commitments have been dropping every year since a record high 6,174 were admitted in 1965, he said.

The decline was attributed to the development of "effective" community-based treatment programs for many offenders who in past years would have been sent to state institutions.

Education Board Picks 1972-73 Administrators

Administrators in the San Rafael schools were appointed last night for the 1972-73 school year by the San Rafael Board of Education.

With a few exceptions, present administrators in both the elementary and high school districts were reappointed.

Anne Philbert, principal at Glenwood School, was named principal for next year at Bahia Vista and Short schools. Robert E. McCurdy, principal at Bahia Vista, will replace Mrs. Philbert as Glenwood principal.

Lawrence Geiger, principal at Sun Valley School, will also serve as principal at West End School next year.

Supt. John F. Plank said the vacancies at West End and Short were created with the request of Webster Smith, principal of both, to be reassigned to a teaching position.

The board of education last night also authorized a new counselor's position at Santa Venetua Middle School, to fill it.

The only other administrative change made last night, Plank said, was moving Donald Wiffin, an assistant principal at San Rafael High School, to Terra Linda High School, and moving Jeffery Thorner, assistant principal at Terra Linda, to San Rafael.

The San Rafael Board of Education also:

CITY — Formally approved an agreement reached with the San Rafael City Council Jan. 31 calling for a sharing between schools and city of the costs for a recreation program at Santa Venetia Middle School and for the city to take over maintenance of storm drain pumps at Glenwood School when the district brings them up to standard.

NEXUS — Received a report on plans for a Nexus program, described as a "school within a school," from San Rafael High School teacher Walter Belden. Belden said the plan calls for 90 to 100 students and four teachers working on an interdisciplinary approach four hours daily.

EMERGENCY — Declared an emergency situation at Santa Venetia Middle Schfol. The action was required to expedite plans for reconstruction of a portion of the school hit by arson Christmas Day.

CALENDAR — Deferred adoption of a 1972-73 school year calendar, running from Sept. 11 through June 15, pending reaction to the proposed calendar from teachers.

APPOINTMENTS — Appointed Robert Deima and Edward Harris substitute custodians at $3.29 an hour, and hired 16 instructional aides for the elementary school district to work four hours a day at $2.64 an hour.

RESIGNATIONS — Accepted the resignation of Bobbie Dobreff, typist clerk, because of a change of residence, and Francis Skinner, custodian at Terra Linda High School, who has accepted another job.

GIFTS — Accepted a one year subscription to "Human Events" given to San Rafael High School by Mrs. J. M. Edwards; two copies of "The Story of the Pony Express," two silver medallions and other historical material on the Pony Express given to San Rafael High School by Mrs. Waddell Smith, and a kiln valued at $250 given to Coleman School by the Coleman Parent-Teachers Association.

Insurance Firms Hit On Taxes

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —A student volunteer organization investigating state government said Monday that California has lost $100 million since 1950 through a tax loophole for insurance companies.

In a 56-page study, "Project Loophole," a volunteer group sponsored by the State Senate Democratic Caucus said that the home office property tax deduction will cost the state $16 million in lost tax revenue this year alone.

The students said there were 12 insurance companies that paid no state insurance taxes at all in 1970-71.

Bolinas, Stinson Plans Scrapped

The 1961 Bolinas-Stinson Beach master plan — feared by some residents as allowing too much growth — was scrapped yesterday by the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

Almost immediately after junking the aging plan, supervisors voted unanimously to impose an interim ordinance restricting development around the seaside communities pending a new master plan.

That plan, expected later this year, will be drafted by the county planning department and several community groups which have offered their support.

The 1961 plan envisioned two communities as someday having a combined population of between 20,000 and 25,000, being linked to the remainder of the Bay Area by a freeway and each having a major shopping center.

They charged that the old plan promoted tourism and suggested the new plan consider agriculture and commercial fishing as sources of revenue to the towns.

The interim ordinance requires a use permit for all development other than single homes and greater county authority over size and kinds of development, which must be compatible with the proposed countywide general plan.

Creek Ruling: County Braces For Worst

The legal stew bubbling around the Corte Madera Creek flood control project continued to thicken yesterday as county supervisors reacted to news that a superior court order had, in effect, stopped the project.

Questioning the county's liability for future flooding in Ross Valley, the board directed County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney to draft a confidential opinion on where the county stands.

The court order, issued yesterday morning by Judge Joseph G. Wilson, rules that the Town of Ross may halt the project from coming through that community and if it doesn't so act residents have the right of referendum.

At stake for the county, which is sponsoring the project through a flood control district, is the possibility of future suits from flooded homeowners claiming the county at fault for not completing the project.

Whether the Ross court decision lifts that liability or not will presumably be one of the matters Maloney's document will consider.

Also to be considered is a commitment to the Army Corps of Engineers, which is supervising the project, that the county will secure flood control rights-of-way from residents along the creek in Ross.

Delay in delivering the rights-of-way by April 10 would mean at least a year's delay — a delay already insured by the court decision.

Maloney, in urging his document be kept confidential, said he would hate to see it used against him in court if it recommends something the county is not prepared to follow.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors Also:

GRADING — Set Feb. 22 for a hearing on extending for one year the county's emergency ordinance restricting grading, filling and excavating.

LAND USE — Terminated a contract with the University of California at Berkeley which was developing a transportation and land use computer study to forecast future county needs. The study, after its first stage, proved to be too costly.

REMODELING — Junked a proposal to remodel Civic Center office space in several county departments after no contractor could be found to do the work. The work involved placing partitions in the offices and rearranging space allocations. The county next year will consider opening up unused sections of the Hall of Justice instead.

MILEAGE — Tentatively set 13 cents per mile as the new mileage rate paid all county employees using their own vehicles for county business. The rate increase will take effect July 1 after budget hearings. The current rate paid is 7½ and 12 cents per mile depending on usage.

MARIN CITY — continued for one week discussion of the proposed agreement between the county redevelopment agency, housing authority and a New York developer over disposition of Marin City ridgelands. Supervisors said they were interested in hearing the outcome of last night's meeting of the housing authority and redeveLopmen agency before offering their support to the proposed agreement releasing title of the lands from the agencies to the developer.

APPOINTMENTS — Appointed Philip S. Ehrlich Jr. to another term on the Marin County Housing Authority, and Councilman Byron D. White of Corte Madera to the Marin County Aviation Commission succeeding Melville Dickson, who requested not to be reappointed.

CLOSED SESSION — Entered closed session with representatives of the county counsel's office and public works decision to discuss pending litigation. Officials declined to reveal the nature of the litigation.

Marinwood Building Plan Passes

A master plan for the controversial Kaiser Aetna condominium project in Marinwood was approved yesterday almost without comment by the Marin County Board of Supervisors. (Another supervisors' story, page 1.)

The proposed project, which brought cries of protest from nearby residents when unveiled several months ago, still must go through a rezoning hearing Feb. 22.

Yesterday's hearing was in marked contrast to one held by supervisors in November when some 80 Marinwood residents talked the board into reducing the development's density from 145 units to 109.

It was referred back to the planning commission for modification.

During hearings before the planning commission, residents succeeded in getting the project's streets dedicated to the county for maintenance but lost in a move to open up tennis court facilities to the public.

That request was made again yesterday but supervisors said they had no legal authority to make that demand.

Attorney for the developer, Albert Bianchi of San Rafael, offered to meet with residents to see if some agreement could be reached, but said Kaiser Aetna would not accept opening of the courts as a condition of approval of plans.

A previously agreed upon condition that the project open up a number of its units to low and moderate-income families was deleted by the planning commission when the number of units was reduced.

U.S. Backs Out Of Alaska Road Project

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The United States has decided not to join Canada in paying for a project to rebuild and repair a portion of the Alaskan Highway between Dawson Creek, B.C., and the Alaskan border.

President Nixon announced Tuesday that a study indicated alternate routes are being developed in British Columbia "and the anticipated traffic volume on the Alaska Highway should not be sufficiently heavy to warrant reconstruction and paving." He said the Canadian government indicated it does not want to undertake the project on its own.

Three More Special Meetings Set On Tiburon Open Space

The Tiburon City Council moved fast last night, setting up a timetable to take advantage of their 90-day moratorium on development of the city's ridgelands and other open spaces.

At the special meeting, Mayor Denis T. Rice proposed and the council approved a series of three more special meetings on the open space preserves.

The first meeting will be a hiking tour of the ridge open lands beginning at noon Sunday from the mayor's home at 117 Hacienda Drive.

The second session, at 8 p.m. Feb. 22 in city hall, will feature an inventory of land desired for open space, and decisions whether to exclude some lands from the 90-day interim holding zone or add more lands to the approximately 400 acres earmarked so far.

The third special meeting, 8 p.m. March 7 in the city hall, will be a review of bond election pros and cons, redevelopment and federal and other means of financing city purchase of the lands.

Councilmen last night reviewed their individual views supporting the moratorium and the desirability of open space. Audience members lent support. No landowner criticized the moratorium, in contrast to the cries of "foul" at the Jan. 31 meeting when it was adopted.

He said the council should even extend the moratorium if necessary, rather than act hastily. He said he had planned to develop a school of environment on his 29.95 acres, but would bow to the city open space program.

The city might lease some of the ridgelands for agricultural use by cooperative groups to finance its purchase payments, Smith suggested.

Councilman M. Carlisle Becker presented a map suggesting a ladderlike combination of publicly owned open spaces with access easements linking the key view points, running the length of the peninsula.

Councilman Branwell D. Fanning suggested the council ask the long-quiescent Citizens Committee for Open Space to interview each major landowner in the moratorium area on whether he would donate, sell or make some other arrangement for public use of his lands. The committee should also seek out owners' option terms, Rice said.

Rampton W. Harvey, ex-councilman and chairman of the open space committee, explained the group has not met since 1970 due to lack of direction from the council on what open spaces were desired. He suggested that a golf course on part of the uplands could at least pay for its own upkeep, if not for land purchase.

Councilmen Albert H. Sennett and Anne L. Ellinwood argued that permanent rezoning should go "hand in glove" with open space acquisition. Miss Ellinwood pointed out that the city's zoning must conform by March 1973 to the general plan adopted in January 1967 — which under state law is due for review this year.

She also declared that if a countywide regional park district is formed, the peninsula would be entitled to a share of the $700,000 annual tax income that could be raised.

City Mgr. Bert A. Balmer said that the basic means of financing the open space program would have to be a bond issue approved by the voters, regardless of what other federal or county money is available.

A Break Is Sought In Tuition Bite

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman Ken Meade has introduced legislation that would allow a woman to attend a state college or the University of California without paying nonresident tuition even though her husband lives outside the state.

The Oakland Democrat said Monday a woman who meets all other residency requirements currently must pay out-of-state tuition if her husband is not living in California. He said this penalizes women "simply because of their sex."

Roller Coaster's Thrills At End

PALISADES, N.J. (UPI)—The Cyclone, billed by Palisades Amusement Park as the largest roller coaster in the world, was dismantled Tuesday.

The amusement park, long one of the major summer recreation spots in the New York City area, closed after the 1971 season and is being torn down to make way for a new high-rise apartment complex.

The Cyclone's turn came Tuesday.

For 75 cents on weekends a person could take a 90-second, 3,800-foot long ride with the biggest thrill being a steep 108-foot drop near the beginning.

BOUND FOR NEW HOME

The Coast Guard cutter Taney, after 36 years of Pacific duty, steams out the Golden Gate, bound for its new base at Norfolk, Va. The vessel, which departed yesterday, will be replaced by a new cutter, the Midget, under construction. The Taney, one of the oldest Coast Guard ships still in commission, is the only U.S. fighting ship still active that was caught in the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

5 Pct. Pay Hikes Voted In Sausalito

Sausalito's 75 city employees were granted a 5 per cent cost-of-living raise last night by a unanimous vote of the city council.

The salary hike, retroactive to Jan. 1 of this year, will cost Sausalito approximately $25,900 and does not include fringe benefits, according to City Mgr. Albert St. Cyr.

St. Cyr, who opposed the raise in earlier negoitiations with employee groups because he believed the city could not afford it, said he changed his mind after learning Sausalito will end the fiscal year with $30,000 in revenues beyond those anticipated in this year's budget.

Representatives of police, fire and public works employee associations indicated satisfaction with the council action.

Councilman Wyman Hicks, chairman of the council's finance committee, also recommended the raise, saying it will not increase the city's tax rate or affect its general fund budget.

The council also asked St. Cyr to prepare a recommendation on a suggestion by Hicks that, when a vacancy occurs in the city staff, the council have the power to determine whether the post should be refilled.

The Sausalito City Council also:

CENTRAL WATERFRONT — Spent more than two hours discussing regulations for Sausalito's new central waterfront zone, proposed by the planning commission and directed the city attorney to prepare a final ordinance to establish the district. The council approved strict offstreet parking limitations for uses permitted in the zone including a ban on parking for retail and service establishments, one space for each five yacht harbor berths, one for every 1,000-square-feet of office floor area and one space for each eight seats in a restaurant.

ONE-WAY — Adopted an ordinance designating three downtown streets one-way: Anchor Street will be eastbound; Humboldt, between Anchor and Bay, northbound, and Bay, westbound.

MEETING — Set for 8 p.m. on Feb. 17 a joint study session with the planning and recreation commissions to discuss the Golden Gate Bridge District's plans for southern and northern ferry terminals in Sausalito.

Masten Gives Sausalito Fire Department Good Service Marks

Sausalito Fire Chief Charles E. Masten, who will leave his post next week to become chief in El Monte in Los Angeles County, last night gave the city council his views on the state of city fire service and on proposed consolidation of four Southern Marin fire departments.

Masten said the city's fire forces are "in very fine condition," but made numerous suggestions for upgrading the system.

The chief also opposed consolidation as "impractical" at this time but said it will — and should — come in the future to provide cheaper, more efficient service throughout the area.

The council had asked what it should do to maintain and improve Sausalito's current level of fire service and Masten said it will be necessary to add at least five men to the 19-man department within the next two years. Two must be added, according to he chief, to provide firefighters with the 56-hour work week which the council agreed to in last year's budget discussions.

The other three are needed to insure that Sausalito's Station No. 2 has at least one man on duty at all times, he said.

The chief strongly recommended that the city work to obtain a training tower and training grounds for firefighters, probably in conjunction with all Southern Marin departments in the interest of economics.

He also suggested the city assign "at least seven men" to work solely in the department-run ambulance service, a recommendation that Mayor Alexander R. Imlay termed "appalling." The chief explained that at present, when the department is out on a fire, there can be no ambulance service because of a lack of men. Conversely, he said the department's fire fighting capabilities are "seriously reduced" when the ambulance is out on a call.

The chief also advised the city consider: employment of a fire inspector for fire prevention activities, acquisition of a fire rescue boat for the expanding water front and a site for a third station which may be needed as the city grows.

Masten, a long-time advocate of fire department consolidation, told the council he could not recommend the city move at the present time to implement a consolidation proposal contained in a study prepared last May.

The report, by the Oakland fire consulting firm of Gage and Babcock, set forth plans for combining the Sausalito, Mill Valley, Marin City and Tamalpais fire departments. Other Southern Marin departments, including Belvedere, Tiburon and Alto, have said they oppose any merger.

Masten said the study proposed abandonment of Fire Station No. 2, removal of the ambulance service from Sausalito to a more central location and relocation of some of Sausalito's men and equipment. It also called for moving the city's main fire station, remodeled last year at a cost of $108,000, to a site five blocks north of its present location.

Masten said he felt that Sausalito residents would not accept the level of service proposed at the cost recommended, about 85 cents per $100 of assessed valuation, about what the city now pays for its department.

He does not believe consolidation can be practical and financially feasible until Southern Marin population increases and all six departments in the Richardson Bay Basin agree to a combined fire force.

To illustrate the need for consolidation, Masten noted the City of San Francisco, with 1,800 paid firemen, has 47 pumping engines, while Marin County and its 11 cities, with a total of 200 paid firemen, has 54 pumpers. "This is just a waste of money," he said.

Stronger Laws On Toys Are Sought

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman John Knox, D-Richmond, has introduced a resolution asking Congress to review safety legislation involving children's toys.

The measure introduced Monday asks Congress to see if stronger laws are needed to protect children from unsafe toys.

Additional Net Courts For Park

The Novato City Council last night approved placing two tennis courts at Pioneer Memorial Park by a 4-1 vote.

Councilman George C. Quesada, the lone dissenter, said he was opposed to development at the park and that it "would be ridiculous to build two courts there."

The decision ended a debate of many months over where the courts should be. At one time there was talk of locating them at the O'Hair property, Novato Boulevard and Sutro Avenue, if and when that site was acquired by the city.

A move by Councilman J. Wayne Womack to leave the way open for two more courts at the park was defeated by a 3-2 vote with Wayne Sartain, David Price Jones and Mayor Joseph D. Gargiulo voting against it.

The Novato City Council also:

SCOTTSDALE-CROSSROADS PLAN — Adopted a revised general plan for the Scottsdale-Crossroads area, 375 acres between Highway 101 and South Novato Boulevard, south of Nave Gardens by a 4-1 vote with Sartain dissenting. The council designated higher density, 12 to 18 units an acre, for the 13-acre Baccaglio property and the 4-acre Bobo property, along South Novato Boulevard, than recommended. The planning commission recommended 10 to 15 units an acre for both properties.

OLD POST OFFICE — Agreed that the first Novato Post Office building, now a home on South Novato Boulevard, should remain at its present site until the city determines where it can be relocated. A group of residents has recommended that it be retained as an historical building.

BUS STATION — Was advised by City Mgr. Charles A. Brown that the city might have to consider a subsidy to help keep open the former Greyhound Bus Depot, which has lost revenue since the switchover from Greyhound to Golden Gate Bridge District bus service.

PERMITS — Approved permits for the San Marin High School Ecology Club's "Walk for Open Space" April 21, and the Marin High School Bike Race, March 28.

STOP SIGN — Approved a stop sign and school crosswalk at the Adams Street approach to Hill Streets.

CREEK PARK — Approved a new plan for Novato Creek Park with 20 parking spaces at the front of the park, rather than at the rear of the Novato Prehistory Museum by a 4-1 vote with Quesada dissenting. The cost of the project, including a bicycle path, was estimated at $14,680.

BOYS CLUB — Waived the business license fee for the Novato Boys Club, which plans to operate a thrift shop at the Rodoni house, adjacent to the Novato Community House.

CLUB SITE — Introduced an ordinance approving a master plan for 9.7-acre site on the east side of Wilson Avenue, south of Vineyard Road, including 1.5 acres designated for the Novato Boys Club clubhouse.

FOREIGN GUEST — Welcomed Cesar Sgambatti, a Venezuelan official in commercial development and municipal improvement.

Japan Earthquake

SENDAI, Japan (UPI)—An earthquake jarred parts of the northern coast of the Japanese main island of Honshu today, but there were no reports of injury.

Novato Plans Bigger Hamilton Use Role

The Novato City Council, which approved limited joint military-civilian use at Hamilton Air Force Base last August, wants to get more involved in deciding that use.

The council voted 3-2 last night to establish a 15-member committee to study the planning, economic and environmental aspects of joint use.

Councilman J. Wayne Womack, who opposed the idea of yet another committee, and Councilman Wayne Sartain, who opposed including representatives from out of the area on the committee, dissented.

The council rejected a proposal by Councilman George C. Quesada that it declare any understanding with Marin County "null and void" and be "unalterably opposed" to any joint use until there was a satisfactory joint powers agreement between the two governments.

The city consented to not more than eight civilian flights a day at the base, but the Marin County Aviation Commission "is presently negotiating with Air Force officials at a level in excess of eight operations per 24 hours," Quesada said.

Quesada's motion was defeated by a 3-2 vote with Womack, Sartain and David Price Jones dissenting.

Jones, who proposed the formation of a committee, warned "the whole subject matter can get away from us. I think it's time the city got involved."

Sartain said Novato residents are becoming polarized on the joint use issue, and he would prefer to hear from a local committee.

A local committee would bring in recommendations, "not based on what the Association of Bay Area Governments has in mind and not based on what the county has in mind," Jones said.

The city's joint use committee will consist of a city planning commissioner, Marin County Aviation Commissioner William A. Gnoss, and representatives of the Novato Chamber of Commerce, the Marin Conservation League, each of the five neighborhood committees studying the Novato area general plan, Hamilton Air Force Base, the fixed base operators at Gnoss Field, the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce and the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau.

The council also asked City Mgr. Charles A. Brown to consult with the base commander about having Air Force pilots adhere to the flight pattern to cut down on flights over the city, and reduce noise.

Meeting Of Flood Panel Is Canceled

Tonight's meeting of the Mill Valley Flood Control Zone Advisory board has been canceled due to the illness of Charles P. Murphy, Marin County flood control engineer.

No new date has been scheduled for the meeting, according to a flood control department spokesman.

Guilty Plea On Drugs Charge

Paul Edward Le Clair, 20, of San Anselmo, is due to be sentenced in Marin Superior Court March 20 on a charge of possessing marijuana for sale.

Le Clair, who originally had been accused of the more serious crime of selling marijuana, pleaded guilty to the lesser charge Monday before Judge Thomas F. Keating.

He was arrested Sept. 8 after he sold drugs to an undercover agent. A search of his residence later turned up more drugs.

WORD-A-DAY

Under 21s May See Jury Duty

A group of 18-to-21-year-olds will be called soon to serve on juries in Marin's superior and municipal courts but how many of them actually will see duty is anyone's guess.

Responses beginning to trickle into the county clerk's office in answer to questionnaires mailed to more than 800 young persons indicate only a few are asking to be exempted.

The requests have been mainly from youths who are away from home with the military or at school, according to clerks.

Questionnaires were mailed last week to 814 young voters informing them they had been selected for jury panels and asking if they wished to claim exemptions.

Only a few have asked to be exempted on the grounds they are full-time students, according to Edmar Hicks, deputy county clerk. However, she said, a big stack of names has been set aside for those available only for summertime jury service.

Most of the young people who said they could serve on juries at any time, however, also said they are students. Whether they would be able to devote long periods of time often necessary as jurors will not be known until they actually are called.

The 814 were selected at random by a computer from the approximately 3,500 who have registered to vote in Marin since new legislation made them eligible.

They were selected in the same percentage as older voters called for jury duty.

As of the first week in March, young people over 18 but under 21 will be eligible for all adult rights, except drinking alcoholic beverages.

Links Problems Of Pollution To Economics

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A St. Louis, Mo., environmentalist said Monday he feels most ecological and pollution problems are questions of economics.

Dr. Barry Commoner told the annual meeting of the American Academy of Allergy that decisions should be made not by a group of technical experts but by the public at large.

The noted biologist is director of the Center for the Biology of Natural Systems at Washington University in St. Louis.

Commoner said such problems as nitrate pollution from the overuse of chemical fertilizers, phosphate pollution from too many detergents and the burgeoning automobile population hinge on economic issues.

"We're not any cleaner now then in the 1940s, we're just using different things to clean ourselves," he said.

Report Opposes A New Airport

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The San Francisco Planning and Urban Renewal Association released a report Monday, opposing the building of a new regional airport.

The organization urged instead that existing facilities be improved and expanded.

Earlier an Association of Bay Area Governments committee had raised the possibility of an airport in the Gilroy-Hollister area or near Travis Air Force Base.

Angela Attorneys' New Jury Proposal

SAN JOSE (UPI)—Angela Davis' attorneys suggested today that while registered voters are too biased to be jurors in Miss Davis' murder-kidnap trial, licensed drivers might be acceptable.

They also suggested that in criminal cases involving felons the jury should be made up of the defendants' fellow criminals.

Winding up final arguments on what could be the last round of Pretrial motions before the start of Miss Davis' trial, Attorney Margaret Burnham said the defense seeks "jurors who will not come to court with racism as their main stumbling block."

Miss Burnham suggested the jury be selected from a list provided by the State Department of Motor Vehicles for holders of drivers licenses.

"Actually, poor people are licensed to drive in approximately the same proportion as the non-poor," she said.

Assemblyman Fong Will Be Speaker

Assemblyman March K. Fong, D-Oakland, will be guest speaker at the annual membership dinner of the Planned Parenthood Association of Marin Feb. 17 at Tiburon Tommie's restaurant in Tiburon.

Mrs. Fong has in the past authored legislation in behalf of venereal disease education in schools.

John Azzaro, the association's executive director, said the purpose of the dinner will be to thank members of the association for their support.

Contributions from about 700 donors provided $43,000 of planned parenthood's $72,000 budget for 1971, he said. The remainder of its funds were from reserves and income from patient revenue and other fees, he said.

During 1971, Azzaro said, the planned parenthood center at 710 C Street in San Rafael received 1,161 women for pregnancy testing and counseling. Another 629 persons were provided contraceptive services and 215 men were referred to doctors for vasectomies, he said.

The 7:30 p.m. dinner will be preceded by cocktails at 6:30 p.m.

Rain Washes Out Car Wash, But Breakfast Held

A car wash set for to raise funds for a tour by San Rafael High School music students was canceled Saturday because of rain.

A pancake breakfast was held, however, at the school's cafeteria and raised $250, music chairman Terry Simmons reported.

Simmons said the car wash would be rescheduled.

Five music groups will tour the Pacific Northwest in April, exchanging concerts with other schools.

Pizza Parlor Plans Are Approved

The LArkspur Planning Commission last night approved a pizza parlor and a roofing change.

The commission approved a Straw Hat pizza parlor on Bon Air Road between the Safeway store and Corte Madera Creek, but requirej the applicant, Design Services Inc. of Menlo Park, to give a 10-foot right-of-way for a bicycle path and redesign the rear to be more attractive to cyclists, according to secretary Barbara Bruton.

The builders of the chain pizza establishment were also told to return with landscaping and lighting plans, she said.

The commission, in other action, freed the developer of buildings on either side of the Gingham Girl at 1000 Magnolia Avenue from the requirement of costly shingled roofs, then suggested that light volcanic stone be used instead, Mrs. Bruton said.

Supervisors In Sonoma Like Panel

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors has agreed to join the proposed North Coast Planning and Development Commission.

The unanimous vote was cast with no discussion Monday, although representatives of Sonoma County cities have opposed the makeup of the commission.

Mendocino County supervisors have also approved the agreement and it is under discussion in Lake, Humboldt and Del Norte counties. The agency would serve as a clearing house for federal grant applications in much the same manner as the Association of Bay Area Governments.

Petaluma City councilmen and others have said that Sonoma should be permitted more than two representatives on the commission since it would be paying half the operational costs estimated at $50,000 per year. According to the agreement, each county would pay a share of the costs based on its assessed valuation. The county could levy a special tax of one cent for $100 assessed valuation to cover the cost.

Bagley Bus Law Draws Opposition

The Larkspur School District board last night came out in favor of neighborhood schooling and against busing legislation authored by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

Supt. Milton S. Cohen said the board unanimously supported an effort by Assemblyman Floyd Wakefield, R-South Gate, to repeal the Bagley law which will become effective March 4.

Wakefield is campaigning for an initiative on the November ballot. He claims the Bagley law will require massive forced busing and destroy the neighborhood School concept.

Bagley has countered that his law will prevent court-ordered busing because it sets up guidelines to end racial imbalance. His bill also encourages districts to consider alternatives to busing.

The Larkspur School District board also:

PROPOSITION — Backed Proposition 2 on the June statewide ballot which would provide $350 million in building bonds for school districts.

LIBRARY MONEY — Received $1,513 under the Elementary-Secondary Education Act to buy books, maps, globes and charts.

BOUNDARIES — Tabled indefinitely a request by the Mill Valley School District to annex the site of the proposed 540-unit Meadowsweet development in Corte Madera. The Mill Valley district doesn't want the influx of children, but Reed and now Larkspur School District haven't shown any desire to help.

AUDITOR — Hired Leader, Jarvis and Keigwin to do the 1971-72 audit for about $1,500.

SUMMER SCHOOL — Appointed Leo Zaro, vice principal of Neil Cummins School, principal of the summer school and set June 21 to July 21 for the summer session.

LEAVE — Granted a leave of absence for the spring to Helen Stewart and hired Ruth Scott to teach her third grade class at San Clemente School for the rest of the school year.

AIDES — Hired Richard Godfrey and Nancy Olmsted as teacher's aides at Henry C. Hall School for $3 an hour.

TEACHERS — Hired Marilyn Burns and Margaret Fleming to teach slow learners for $7 an hour, which will be paid by the state.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to 8 p.m. March 9 at the district office.

Military Tax Exemption Asked

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman E. Richard Barnes, R-San Diego, has introduced legislation restoring a $1,000 state income tax exemption for military servicemen.

Barnes said the exemption was abolished by the legislature last year.

Action Delayed On Marist Land Plans

After a three-hour hearing before a standing-room-only crowd, the San Rafael Planning Commission last night declined to act and set another hearing on controversial plans for development of the Marist seminary property on Grand Avenue.

The crowd jammed into the city council chambers consisted primarily of residents of the Dominican and Black Canyon areas of San Rafael, many of whom oppose the development plans, contending their residential areas will be subjected to noise, litter, lights and traffic.

The plans call for a ballet school, private tennis club, a lodge meeting hall and a church. The marist Fathers purchased the property, formerly the Tamalpais School for Boys, in 1955, but are selling it, saying they can no longer afford to hold the nine acres.

The commission last night directed San Rafael Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner to meet with the applicants for the four use permits to discuss further details of their plans prior to the continued hearing on the property, which the commission set for Varch 6.

San Rafael real estate agent Anthony Costello, who is handling sale of the property, told the commission last night that when the property was first put up for sale he contacted San Rafael and Marin County officials about possible purchase by them to maintain the site as a park, but was told no funds were available.

The San Rafael Planning Commission Also:

TOWER — Approved relocation of radio station KTIM's transmission tower from an area on the north fork of Gallinas Creek to a storage area at the rear of a mobile home park being constructed on Smith Ranch Raod.

BILLIARDS — Granted a use permit to R. P. Ritter and M. Oakley for a billiard room in conjunction with a restaurant in rear portion of a building at 908 Lincoln Avenue.

OFFICE — Approved a use permit and gave architectural approval to Margarita Development Company plans for a two-story, 16,380 square foot office building at 68 Mitchell Boulevard.

APARTMENTS — Granted a use permit and architectural approval to T. L. Schoonmaker plans for a 30-unit apartment complex at 35 Canal Street.

POOL — Authorized a change in the location of a swimming pool for a 35-unit apartment complex under construction at 10 Professional Center Parkway, and allowed Horst Hanf Co. to add a six-car parking deck to plans for the complex.

ALTERATION — Gave architectural approval to A. Leonhard to add a kitchen and bath to an existing building at the rear of 48 Grove Street.

MEETING — Continued three subdivision applications and a review of a proposed tennis club near Mount Tamalpais Cemetery until its next meeting Feb. 29.

Bound Over On Welfare Fraud

Herbert Cosme, 22, of Greenbrae, yesterday was bound over to Marin Superior Court on a charge of felony welfare fraud.

He is to be arraigned next Wednesday.

Judge Robert A. Smallman also ordered Cosme remanded into jail and held until he can post $4,000 bail after he heard testimony at a preliminary hearing.

Warning Issued On Sea Drift Lagoon Outings

The Marin County health officer- today warned against fishing and swimming in Sea Drift Lagoon at Stinson Beach for the next three months because the water has been sprayed with a "potentially toxic" weed killer.

Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht said the Sea Drift Property Owners Association sprayed the lagoon Saturday with 5,500 pounds of Casoron. She said it is highly unlikely that anyone could ingest a harmful amount from swimming or eating fish and shellfish from the contaminated water, but the substances effects are largely unknown.

The weed killer's label warns against using fish and shellfish from waters to which it is applied for either food or animal feed until 90 days after its application, Dr. Albrecht said.

Burglary Suspect's Address Was Wrong

Leslie Howard Browder, 20, arrested Thursday after a bail slip with his name on it was found inside a house which had been burglarized, does not live at 6 Rita Court, Novato, according to Kitty Rand, a tenant at that address.

Browder, who gave the Rita Court address when arrested, had only been staying there for a few days because he was between residences at the time, she said.

5 Sentenced On Drunken Driving

Five persons were sentenced Monday for drunken driving in Marin Municipal Court by Judge Peter Allen Smith.

They are:

William Bayne Roberson, 47, of Vallejo, arrested Nov. 21 on Highway 17, placed on probation for one year, fined $300 and sentenced to four days in jail.

Albert Harry McConnell, 52, of 1 Cresta Circle, San Rafael, arrested Jan. 15 on Highway 101, placed on probation for one year and fined $302.

Joseph Boris Deveny, 39, of San Fzancisco, arrested Dec. 10 on Highway 101, placed on probation for one year and fined $302.

Harry Beverly Myers, 46, of 88 Toyon Drive, Fairfax, arrested Jan. 24 on Highway 101, placed on probation for one year and fined $250.

John Maturin Ballachey, 24, of Bellflower, Los Angeles county, arrested Jan. 30 on Highway 101, placed on probation for one year and fined $176.

Major Auto Dealership Wins Support

The Corte Madera Board of Design last night approved another major auto dealership in east Corte Madera.

William G. McBride, town zoning administrator, said the board approved a Porsche-Audi agency on four acres at 5711 Paradise Drive.

The town planning commission will study the proposal at its regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday at town hall.

The dealership planned by the Reynolds C. Johnson Co. of Pleasanto would handle all of the Porsche-Audi sales from Marin to the Oregon border, McBride said.

The proposed building will be a modern concrete structure with large sweeps of glass, McBride said. It will cover 16,720 square feet, about the size of Campbell-Bishop Chevrolet, he said.

A Toyota still doesn't cost very much. The Corolla 1200, for example, sells for $1,955.90, plus $50.00 dealer preparation, $23.95 freight, tax and license.

Marin's Population-Job Disparity

Marin County has the greatest disparity in the Bay Area between population and the number of in-county jobs, according to a survey released by the San Francisco Bay Area Council

The county has 4.4 per cent of the Bay Area's population, but only 2.2 per cent of the employment offered in the nine-county region, according to the survey The figures merely gave focus to what already is known most Marinites commute out of county to work

The council is a business organization which deals with economic, environmental and civic development of the Bay Area

San Francisco, the council survey said, contains 15 per cent of the region's population, but provides nearly 30 per cent of its jobs In 13 major industry divisions, more than half of all the Bay Area jobs in those fields were in San Francisco.

Marin County, however, does have a greater proportion than its population would indicate in the following employment fields.

Agricultural services, mining, construction, rubber and plastic products, stone, clay and glass products, drug and chemical products, retail stores, insurance brokerages, and personal services, such as hotels, auto repair and motion picture theaters

According to the report, half of all firms in the nine-county Bay Area employ fewer than four persons each

Only 5 per cent of the 81,091 Bay Area firms are large employers, and they provide more than half of the 1.36 million jobs in the area, the council said.

Businesses dealing in services accounted for 33.8 per cent (27,432) of all Bay Area firms and retail firms comprised 26.9 per cent (21,835) of the total

Finance, insurance and real estate firms numbered 8,108 and wholesale firms, 6,667.

Manufacturing was fifth in the total number of firms, but by far it provided the greatest number of jobs, with 1,114 firms employing 50 or more. A total of 101 employed 500 workers or more.

Packard Picked For Nixon Team

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Former Deputy Secretary of Defense David Packard has been named San Francisco Bay Area regional chairman of the California Committee for the Re-election of the President, Gov. Ronald Reagan announced today.

Packard, who served as the second-ranking official in the Department of Defense for nearly three years, resigned in December to return to the post of chairman of the board of Hewlett-Packard Co. in Palo Alto.

Packard will direct President Nixon's re-election campaign in Alameda, Contra Costa, Marin, San Francisco, San Mateo and Santa Clara counties.

Crime Patrols In Times Square

NEW YORK (UPI)—Times Square, once a major tourist attraction but now a mecca for prostitutes, pornographers, muggers and addicts, will be patrolled by "hundreds" of extra policemen.

The announcement was made Monday at a City Hall news conference by Police Commissioner Patrick V. Murphy, who was seated beside Mayor John V. Lindsay.

Newsmen reminded Lindsay that a similar announcement had been made in July after complaints about aggressive prostitutes soared and media attention was focused on problems in the theatrical district.

At Any Bridge Table, Good Defense Takes Lots Of Courage

Sometimes a defense w&l work only if one defender keeps gaining the lead. This is easy if that defender has several high cards, but it takes courage and partnership confidence if the other defender has the bulk of the strength.

Opening lead -- ♡ 2

OLD FASHIONED

South's jump to three hearts was the old-fashioned strength-showing type, not favored by modern experts. When North raised to game on a rather doubtful hand, East doubled. The double was of the "take it or leave it" variety, and West wisely decided to leave it.

Bill Hanna, former Los Angeles bridge star, opened the deuce of trumps. This gave the defenders their best chance to hold declarer to eight tricks.

RETURNS A DIAMOND

Declarer won in dummy with the five of hearts and returned a diamond. This put matters squarely up to Sidney Lazard, New Orleans expert, who held the East cards. East wanted his partner to gain the lead and push more trumps out, so he played the eight of diamonds.

South should have played the ten of diamonds, but he played a despairing low card. Hanna won with the nine of diamonds and led a second trump.

Dummy won the jack, and once more declarer led a diamond from dummy. Lazard continued his bold policy of playing low. Hanna gratefully overtook the jack of diamonds with his queen and led a third trump.

END IN SIGHT

The end was now in sight. Declarer could make only six trumps and two clubs.

South could have made nine tricks by several different fine plays, but the trump defense gave him the chance to flounder. Still, I wonder how many defenders would find a way to lead three trumps before South could get started.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner bids one spade, the next player overcalls two hearts, and it is up to you holding:

♠ - K 7 5
♥ - 9 7 4 2
♦ - Q 9 7
♣ - J 8 6.

What do you say?

Answer: Bid two spades.

This is a borderline hand, and many experts would favor a pass. If you fail to bid at once, however, you may never get another cheap chance to show the support for partner's suit.

Beatles' Fan Club To Disband

LONDON (UPI) — The Beatles' fan club, rated the biggest of its kind in popular music, will disband at the end of March, a spokesman for the musicians said today.

The U.S. branch of the club already has closed, and the spokesman said it was unlikely that John Lennon, Paul McCartney, George Harrison and Ringo Starr would perform again as a group.

"We don't want to keep the myth going —because we are no longer together," Ringo said.

Reagan Secret Plan For A New Mansion

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan said today he has a secret plan to finance construction of a new mansion for California governors, but he won't be living in it.

'This is the only way it's going to be done: Somebody gets the thing built for someone else," Reagan told a news conference.

He declined, however, to specify who would put up the money for construction—the taxpayers or private contributors.

"Don't ask me to tip off where I can see the money coming from," he said.

"At last it can be perfectly clear that if (construction) was started tomorrow, I won't get to live in it," he said. "I figure I'm the guy that after 32 years of political hasseling, backbiting, snarling and fighting over this issue, maybe one thing that I can leave to the state of California is a decent place for the governors to live."

Shortly after he came into office, private contributors raised enough money to purchase 14 acres of land overlooking the scenic American River near Carmichael. But plans for a new governor's residence became a partisan issue and the structure was never built.

"I am going to do my best before I leave to see that 14 acres is utilized and that a residence is built befitting the State of California," he said.

He declined to reveal whether his plan involved asking the legislature for construction funds but when asked whether he meant it would be financed from private sources, he said, "Oh, no, no."

"I've got an idea," he added. "We'll see if we can't come up with that money, at least to start it."

"I've got a dream," he said.

Reagan and his family quit the rickety state-owned, century-old mansion in downtown Sacramento shortly after he took office and chose to rent a fashionable home in East Sacramento.

Asked what a future governor would do if he chose not to live at the proposed new mansion site, Reagan responded:

"Then he can do what I did. He can rent himself a house and be accused of cheating because he's paying his own rent."

State Prison Boss Rapped By Legislator

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A state legislator today called on Gov. Ronald Reagan to fire state Corrections Director Raymond Procunier for "rank incompetence" and "liberal policies" he claimed have led to murders and prison escapes.

Reagan, in turn, defended his prisons chief at a separate news conference and accused Sen. H.L. Richardson, R-Arcadia, of acting "precipitously."

Richardson said Procunier has "deliberately misled" Reagan by giving him erroneous statistics showing California's prisons are successfully rehabilitating convicts.

He charged that the work furlough program and 72-hour community passes for inmates have turned convicts into "purveyors of narcotics" inside prisons and has put the lives of guards "very much in jeopardy."

Richardson said his demand that Procunier be fired was prompted by the murder of a Southern California schoolteacher. Two inmates from the Don Lugo Community Center near Chino have been charged with the slaying. They were on work furlough passes at the time.

He said the center has had four inmates charged with murder or robbery while they were supposed to be working for private employers. The center houses inmates who are scheduled for parole within 90 days.

James Hall, secretary of the Human Relations Agency and chairman of the state Adult Authority, said shortly after Richardson's news conference that a "continuing investigation" into the center is under way.

He said no new inmates are being assigned to the facility and that the recent escape of a convict who Allegedly returned with a gun from a work furlough has led to tightened security at the prison.

Hall said a search of the facility while the inmates were locked in another prison turned up two pistols, liquor bottles and marijuana.

He said Procunier is "taking action to correct deficiencies" at the center.

Richardson said Procunier has been "failing miserably" and that the prisons are failing to "punish" convicts and "protect society."

"I would suggest the governor get himself together and talk to the guard," Richardson declared. "He might start finding out the truth."

Reagan said his administration is studying the work furlough program and that Procunier is on the team studying the system.

He said until the study is completed, "let's not throw the baby out with the bath water."

Richardson replied that putting Procunier on the panel studying the problem was like "letting the fox guard the henhouse."

He called for longer prison sentences and said the governor was wrong to call for the closure of San Quentin and Folsom prisons.

Richardson said the maximum security institutions "are the best we have at this time."

A TEA FRIDAY

Two Treasures From The Past

Two special Valentine's Day delicacies, both made from recipes that are almost 100 years old and were brought to Marin from Germany, will star on the refreshment table Friday when Founders Auxiliary of the Marin General Hospital Volunteers holds its Friends of Founders tea.

The Sacher Torte Magdalena and Glueckstadt pound cake to be served the guests will be made from recipes belonging to the grandmother of Mrs. Arie L. Bleicher of Mill Valley, a native of Germany.

Mrs. Bleicher, a chairman of the tea with Mrs. George R. Marsh, also of Mill Valley, has given her recipes to Mrs. John Ball of San Rafael so that the heart-shaped, old-fashioned desserts will be prepared by Mrs. Ball's food committee as part of the Valentine's Day theme of the fete.

SACHER TORTE MAGDALENA

¾ cup butter
¾ cup sugar
6 oz. semi-sweet chocolate
6 eggs
1 teaspoon Vanilla
2 cups sifted cake flour
Raspberry jam

Cream three quarter cup butter and add slowly three quarter cup sugar and six ounces semisweet chocolate, melted and slightly cooled, beating the mixture until it is well blended. Add six egg yolks, one at a time, beating after each addition, and one teaspoon vanilla extract. Fold in two cups sifted cake flour and six egg whites, stiffly beaten. Pour the batter into two well-buttered and floured nine-inch layer-cake pans and bake the layers in a slow oven (300 degrees) for about 25 minutes. Turn the layers out on a wire rack to cool. Sandwich them with raspberry jam and cover the torte with Vienna chocolate icing.

VIENNA CHOCOLATE ICING

4 squares unsweetedn chocolate
1 cup confectioner's sugar
2 tablespoons hot water
2 eggs
6 tablespoons butter

In the top of a double boiler over boiling water melt four squares unsweetened chocolate. Remove the pan from the water and blend in thoroughly one cup confectioner's sugar and two tablespoons hot water. Add two eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. Add six tablespoons butter, two tablespoons at a time, beating well after each addition.

VALENTINE'S DAY HEART

½ pt. Whipping cream
Filberts, about 40
1 teaspoon Vanilla
1 teaspoon sugar
Confectioner's sugar

Cut piece of wax paper in shape of heart to fit top of cake

Just before serving the torte, whip the cream and add 1 teaspoon sugar, one teaspoon vanilla. Using piece of wax paper, sprinkle confectioner's sugar to make outline of heart on top of torte. Spread the whipped cream with spatula inside the heart shape. Cut the filberts in two and place them, cut side down, around the heart of whipped cream to make a neat edge for the heart.

GLUECKSTADT POUND CAKE

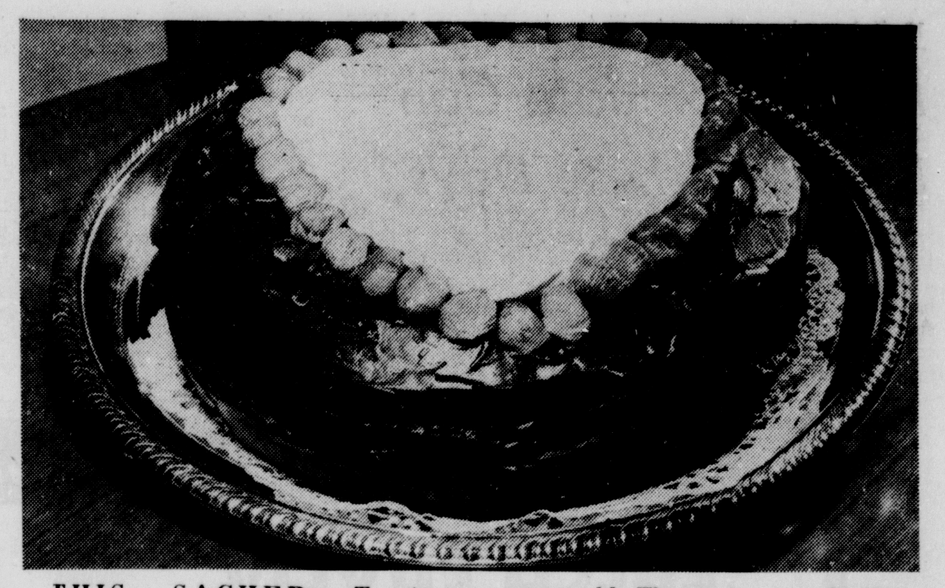
1½ cups butter (sweet)
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 lb. powdered sugar
6 whole eggs
3 cups sifted flour
⅓ cup water

Cream butter until smooth. Add baking powder and sugar slowly until well blended. Add eggs one at a time, beating mixture until smooth after each addition. Lastly, add flour and water slowly to form smooth batter. Bake in two heart shaped, greased baking dishes at 325 degrees for one hour and 15 minutes.

ICING

2 cups powdered sugar
2 tablespoons soft, sweet butter
3 tablespoons white creme de menthe (or substitute)
red food coloring

Ice the cake after it has cooled and been moved from baking dish to platter. Decorate with candied fruit or barely sweetened whipped cream.



THIS SACHER Torte Magdalena, a Valentine's Day delicacy, is made from a German recipe that is almost 100 years old. The recipe was in the file of the grandmother of Mrs. Bleicher, who is a native of Germany. (Independent-Journal photos)

Some Tips On Care Of Cookware

Here are some tips on cookware care that will keep ware in service for years.

Save yourself much of the after-meal drudgery by choosing utensils that are easy to care for and won't mark up the sink.

CeraMic-on-steel ware with its smooth, non-porous surface makes it as easy to clean as glass, and has the durability of steel.

To further lighten your clean-up chores, fill your pots with warm water immediately after use and let them soak until you are ready to pop them in the dishwasher or soapy sink.

However, even the most experienced homemakers sometimes have food burn or boil over. Here, soak the pan in a solution of two quarts of hot water to one tablespoon of baking soda. Then scour with a non-abrasive household cleaner.

A Cherry Sauce That Would Please George

Serve a breakfast George Washington would have enjoyed — but prepared more conveniently than in those cooking times. Red cherry sauce made with canned fruit over toaster-hot waffles from a frozen package.

For 2 cups of the sweet-sour sauce, drain liquid from 1 16-ounce can (2 cups) water-packed, red tart cherries into saucepan; bring to boil. Stir in 2 tablespoons cornstarch completely mixed with ⅔ cup sugar. While sweetening, the sugar also prevents cornstarch from clumping. Stir-cook until thickened and shiny.

Add drained cherries, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, and a drop or so of red food coloring. Cook only until cherries are heated and have plumped a bit by absorbing some of the sugar-syrup. Serve hot in warmed sauce dish.

New Version Of Old Pudding Features Brown Rice, Honey

Here's old-fashioned rice pudding, popular in Susan B. Anthony's day, updated for health food freaks with brown rice and honey, nuts and dates.

RICE PUDDING DELIGHTS

2¼ cups water
¾ cup brown rice
1 teaspoon salt
3 eggs, separated
1½ cups milk
i cup honey
1 teaspoon ground nutmeg
½ cup snipped pitted dates
½ cup chopped walnuts
⅛ teaspoon cream of tartar
⅓ cup sugar

Bring water to a boil in a large saucepan; stir in rice and salt. Reduce heat and cover pan. Simmer about fifty minutes or until rice is tender and all water is absorbed. Remove from heat. Beat egg yolks in a large bowl; stir in milk, honey, nutmeg, dates, walnuts and cooked rice. Ladle into six-ounce custard cups or baking dishes. Place custard cups in a two-inch-deep baking pan. Place on center shelf in oven preheated to 325 degrees. Fill pan with boiling water to a depth of one inch. Bake for approximately one hour or until a knife inserted into the pudding, one inch from the side of the cups, comes out clean.

Remove custard cups from water and cool on a wire rack. Beat egg whites with cream of tartar in a medium-sized bowl until foamy and double in volume. Beat in sugar, one tablespoon at a time, until sugar is dissolved and meringue stands in firm peaks. Spoon meringue evenly onto tops of puddings, making sure it is sealed to edges of cups. Swirl into peaks with back of spoon.

Brown meringue at 425 degrees about five minutes or until peaks are nicely toasted. Cool. Store in refrigerator. Makes eight servings.

Paella Makes An Elegant Party Dish

The fabled Spanish traditional dish, paella is a hearty peasant meal originally cooked outdoors and served as the entire meal.

In the United States it is popular served with a green salad, hot bread and dry white wine.

Paella Catalan calls for the following ingredients.

¼ cup of olive oil
4 pieces chicken
1 clove garlic crushed
1 onion, peeled and chopped
¼ pound cooked ham, cut in thin strips
1 cup long grain rice
12 large, uncooked shrimp
½ pound white fish (cod or swordfish), cut into large cubes
2 canned pimentos (one 4 oz. jar) drained and chopped
12 large mussels
1 cup green peas cooked or one small package frozen peas
⅛ teaspoon saffron (soaked in 3 tablespoons hot water for ½ hour)
2½ cups chicken stock or broth
Salt and pepper to taste

Heat oil in your paella pan and fry chicken over moderate heat until brown on all sides. Remove chicken, add garlic and onion; fry onion until transparent. Add ham and rice, cook and stir until rice is white. Remove from heat. Peel and devein shrimp.

Gather shrimp, fish, pimento and mussels so they are ready to use. Scrub mussels under running water. Arrange all these ingredients on the rice. Add chicken and peas. Push mussels deep into the rice. Lay shrimp on top. Add saffron and liquid to stock or water and pour over ingredients in paella pan. Season to taste, bring to a rapid boil and boil three minutes.

Turn heat down and simmer, uncovered, until all ingredients are cooked and liquid is absorbed (about 20 minutes). Serves 4.

Party Kabobs

Alternately skewer peach slices, whole small parboiled squares of green pepper. Brush with melted butter. Broil slowly until lightly browned. Serve with meat kabobs.

SLOPPY JOES

A New Version To An Old Favorite

Are you planning a "happy-go-lucky" get-together soon? If so, a great idea to finish off the evening is to serve savory Sloppy Joes. Sloppy Joes may be "old hat," but this new version in which cheese adds delicious flavor and good nutrition will provide a midnight supper that will truly be a crowd pleaser.

SAVORY SLOPPY JOES

1 lb. ground beef
1 cup barbecue sauce
¼ cup chopped green pepper
¼ cup chopped onion
8 hamburger buns, split
Pasteurized processed cheese spread, sliced.

Good Practice

Do not refrigerate honey, salad oil, bananas or potatoes.

SLOPPY JOE sandwiches have a new twist when served with cheese. This version makes an ideal midnight supper that should be a real crowd pleaser.

Raisin Compote Can Brighten These Days

A "taste of summer" recipe from California's sunny San Joaquin Valley can help to brighten these cold wintry days. Golden California raisin compote, a healthful fruit mixture that can be used in many different ways, is a delicious blend of two kinds of plump sun-dried California raisins, dried apricots and canned peaches.

Slow baking in the oven preserves the shape and texture of the fruits. The method is simplicity itself. Once the pan is in the oven and the timer set, it can be forgotten. This dish can be kept in the refrigerator ready to make a spectacular dessert at a moment's notice.

A topping of this compote can lift a slice of pound cake or a simple custard pudding into the ranks of stardom. Or serve it as a breakfast surprise — over hot cereal or alongside with some milk or cream, although all alcohol is baked off, orange juice can be sustituted for the brandy.

It's not only a treat, but also a good way to add extra nutrition to this important meal at minimal cost. Raisins are ready to eat right from the box, they're a healthful snack as well as an economical ingredient.

GOLDEN CALIFORNIA RAISIN COMPOTE

2 cans (1 lbs. each) freestone peaches
½ cup dried apricots
1 package (4¾ oz.) slivered almonds or chopped pecans
1 cup golden raisins
1 cup seedless raisins
¾ cup sugar
¾ cup water
¼ cup brandy or orange juice
2 packages (17½ oz.) creamy pudding

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Drain peaches, reserving syrup. Arrange peaches in baking pan, flat side up. Arrange apricots around the peaches and sprinkle with nuts and raisins. Dissolve sugar in water; combine with peach syrup and brandy. Pour over fruit and nuts. Bake uncovered for three to three and a half hours, basting occasionally. Cool. Serve over pudding, if desired, or over ice cream or cake. Makes six to eight servings.

Top With Bananas

FROM OUT OF THE PAST

Galanos Shows His Collection

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—Flirty dresses with bare backs and skirts slit fore, aft and on both sides showed Monday that designer James Galanos endorses romance for spring.

The West Coast designer's show in New York was the very last spring one by a great American designer —many of whom started showing back in October.

The Philadelphia-born designer said he likes to wait this late to show. "It's closer to the time stores start showing and selling to the customers," he said.

By far he had the most daringly bared clothes seen in any collection. But the patriotic and Chinese touches in his line were repeats of a theme many other designers drummed in earlier.

GALANOS, BASED in Los Angeles, numbers among his fans such notables as Mrs. Ronald Reagan and Rosalind Rosalind Russell.

Pat Jones, his directress, said business is "excellent." She said the new collection, numbering 180 pieces, wholesales at from $600 to $1100. Retail usually is about double that.

The Galanos' Chinese silhouettes included the biggest coolie hats in any collection. One covered the model's face to the chin.

Some of the pajama suits, usually in white or black or ivory, had shoe string straps on loose fitting bodices.

His starring numbers for evening included chiffon dresses, many with five layers of skirts slit either on both sides or on occasion also fore and aft.

ALSO IN the evening collection were dresses fitting like a second skin.

For daytime contrasting piping figured in many costumes, including those with short-sleeved jackets. He liked the short-sleeved jacket for evening, too.

white and blue in prints, solids and horizontal stripes —were street anD evening length Many of the jackets had fronts and backs of one color and sleeves of another.

There were many prints in the collection, the most outstanding being Aztec-inspired. The varied prints —dozens of different ones, literally —led one observer to comment:

Marin Women

Santa Rosan To National Office

Mrs. Edwin T. McMannis of Santa Rosa is president-elect of the Women's Auxiliary to the American Dental Association.

Laurette McMannis served as president to the Redwood Empire Dental Auxiliary in 1959-60.

Other offices she has held are president, vice president, coordinator and treasurer of the local auxiliary and dental health chairman of the Women's Auxiliary to the California Dental Society.

Before becoming president-elect of the association, she was a member of the finance committee and served for three years as treasurer for the National Dental Auxiliary.

An interior decorator, Laurette McMannis is a member of the American Institute of Interior Designers and maintains a studio in Santa Rosa. "Who's Who of American Women" lists her as the author of "Color Magic" and "Your Home with Color." She also is listed in the "Dictionary of International Biography" with papers in the Manchester central reference library, England.

She was married to Dr. Edwin T. McMannis of Santa Rosa in 1957. The president-elect enjoys golfing, gardening and fly-fishing for steelhead in the Klamath River. Her interest in gardening led her to establish the Hillside Gardeners of Monclair, one of the largest garden clubs in California.

One of her principal concerns is the care of teeth among children, which is highlighted this week during National Children's Dental Health Week, with the slogan "Happiness Is a Clean Mouth."

Sonoma County school children, with the help of the Redwood Empire Dental Auxiliary, are learning more about the development and maintenance of good dental health habits.

A project to emphasize dental care is the bookmark contest.

MRS. EDWIN T. McMANNIS
Holds national office

Fourth and fifth-graders in Sonoma, Mendocino and Lake Counties are asked to design a dental health bookmark. The winning bookmark will be printed and distributed to all libraries and schools in the three counties. Prizes are being awarded during dental health week. Bookmark chairman is Mrs. Charles Wear of Santa Rosa.

Further stressing the importance of good brushing habits is a puppet show shown throughout the school year in Sonoma County schools. Puppeteers from Petaluma are Mmes. Michael Madick, John Davies, Vincent Gillis, Raymond Nizibian, Leo Lane and Larry Quarles. Sonoma puppeteers are Mmes. Richard Rhodes, Dan Sullivan, Richard Caselli, George Lane Jr. and Ralph Kelly.

Mrs. Betty Hill, Petaluma school nurse, demonstrates the development of jaws and teeth with the use of a specially prepared skull.

Children's 'Kibbutzniks' Scheduled

The Marin Jewish Community Center is having a Saturday afternoon program for kindergarten though sixth-grade children beginning Feb. 19 at the center in San Rafael.

The six-week program, "Saturday Kibbutzniks," will offer Children the opportunity to plan their own small kibbutz with shelter, meals and government.

Activities will include sewing, dancing, cooking, building a clubhouse and learning Israeli folk songs, according to the center's youth program coordinator, Barbara Figone.

"It is a part of the center's effort to bring Israeli culture to Marin County," Miss Figone said. "The program is intended to let children make decisions about their needs and roles as participants in a kibbutz.

Hours for the program are 1 to 4 p.m., and participants can register at the center.

"KEEP POLLUTION
OUT OF YOUR HAIR
WITH THE ECOLOGY CUT"

The Ecology Cut is basic to the health of your hair. It keeps your hair vital and lively looking. A completely individualized method of handling specific types of hair. The emphasis is on cutting your hair so that it follows its natural patterns and needs little or no teasing and hairspray. This minimizes the dulling process of dust and smog on lacquered hair.

Hairstylists have found that they must not only consider your hairstyle when cutting, but also the texture, thickness and elasticity of your hair. Thick, curly full-bodied hair cannot be cut the same way as soft, straight, baby-fine hair.

The Ecology Cut restores the vitality of your hair. Everybody's taking a shine to it! Of course for extra style-support on straight hair we recommend a gentle Body Wave. The Ecology Cut 5.00

HELEN HELP US!

Parapsychology: Is There Anything To All The Clamor?

DEAR HELEN:

The interest in parapsychology and the occult is really growing. Mediums are being consulted by women who a few years ago would chuckle at the thought of someone with "supernatural" powers. Group sessions and spiritualistic churches are springing up all over. One woman I know went to London for three months to study so she might become more "aware" and develop her own powers to foresee the future.

Granted, there's something to ESP, but I can't quite accept all this "other side" hoopla. A well-known minister wrote a book about his dead son "coming back." Often these "seers" base their work on the Bible. But I'm skeptical.

A typical incident: my son was in a car which had a blowout. Fortunately, no one was hurt though the car took quite a pounding. When he told me he was going on a trip with some other boys, I had asked him how the tires were. Afterward, a friend of mine attributed my question to "ESP." I consider it a natural question of a concerned parent.

What do you think about the present popularity of parapsychology? — M.S.

DEAR M.:

People are always fascinated by the unknown and, presently, the mind is just about the only "uncharted" area for us to explore. While much of parapsychology is guesswork based on coincidences, and part of it is fraud, there is still plenty of evidence that we've only just begun to understand what happens in the brain and why.

I'd guess that scientists (as well as laymen) will turn more and more to studies of the mind during the next decade — and the things they discover may make many of our medical, psychological, even sociological, beliefs obsolete. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

After reading about the "Confused Grandparents" I thought I'd write about a different kind of grandparents.

My daughter is divorced from her husband, who wanted his freedom from responsibilities, and never stopped blaming her for their have-to marriage. Her ex-in-laws did not want their son to get married and suggested my daughter have an abortion. But now, they want the grandson regularly and try to run his life.

They all but ruined their own son, teaching him to lie and cheat. My daughter is heartsick each time our grandson is picked up by them, but she does not complain. She only wishes it weren't so often. Couldn't she make a rule that once a month is enough? Especially since the father has not lived up to his duties? — ALSO CONFUSED GRANDPARENTS

DEAR GRANDPARENTS:

Grandparents have no legal visitation privileges — these belong only to the father.

One weekend per month (or perhaps three weekdays out of the month if your daughter works) seems sufficient. Why doesn't she get tough and say so? — H.

A Consumer Voice That's In Trouble

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — Your voice in this city on consumer matters has never been very loud. In the near future, it may become even less audible.

Although consumers still have some powerful friends here — from Ralph Nader to some leaders of Congress — the organization most often identified as the consumer's champion is so deeply in financial trouble that it is in a struggle to survive for another year.

It is ironic, at a time when the consumer has never had so many ardent friends, that the main lobbying organization for consumers is reduced to bank loans and emergency appeals for contributions.

But that is the situation revealed at the recent annual meeting of the Consumer Federation of America. Founded five years ago as an amalgamation of diverse groups with a common interest in the consumer, CFA has been hampered from the start by low budgets and failure to meet them.

ALTHOUGH BUDGETED at $75,000 last year, a very small figure compared to associations in the business field, contributions and dues totaled only $44,000, approximately $30,000 below estimates. Other income came to $9,000.

The result was an operating deficit of $19,000, which necessitated a transfer of $13,000 from a prior year's surplus and a $5,000 bank loan.

In presenting the sad details to the annual meeting, secretary-treasurer Arnold Mayer suggested a dues increase of $8,500 and new efforts to find sources of funds. The dues increase was promptly approved, and a committee was formed to press the search for additional money.

The drop in dues and contributions was particularly noticeable in the labor field. The total from trade unions fell from $21,150 to $16,435 from 1970 to 1971; revenue from other national groups decreased from $15,500 to $13,750.

At the same time, income from consumer associations dropped from $2,174 to $1,950. The latter figure contrasts sharply with the millions raised for lobbying purposes in Washington by business organizations.

The only group to increase dues and contributions to CFA was the one representing cooperatives. Their total rose from $12,375 to $14,235.

AS OF Jan. 7, CFA had 189 fully paid member organizatins. (Individual citizens are not eligible to join.) The total included 14 local consumer associations and 27 state consumer associations, a total of 41 bonafide citizen groups out of the 189 total.

The largest contribution was $7,750, from Consumers Union, the product-testing outfit that publishes Consumers Reports magazine. Second largest was $5,000, from the AFL-CIO Industrial Union Department. Third largest was $3,500 from the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association.

Only 13 organizations contributed more than $350 to CFA in 1971. Most of the member groups are small, with primary interests in other fields such as rural electric cooperatives and credit unions.

Among the larger contributors, there also are conflicting interests. The fact that the group has survived as long as it has is an indication of the strength of overall consumer interests.

Since the federation was suggested by Esther Peterson six years ago, consumer advocates have felt that there should be a place for a public lobby in the nation's Capital to offset the voices of special interests.

If CFA is going to fill that void in the long run, however, it will have to expand its financial base and involve many more citizen groups.

Sufficiently Hot

The National Safety Council says hot water at 140 degrees is sufficiently hot to combine with soap action and kill most bacteria while laundering or washing dishes. Yet it isn't hot enough to produce painful burns.

Valentine's Day Was Once Banned

St. Valentine's Day celebrations were once banned by law in England and America for 11 bleak years, says cards researcher Sally Hopkins. Festivities had been held on Valentine's Day in Britain since at least 1446, with gift-giving and the exchange of paper valentines.

But in 1649 its observance was forbidden by Oliver Cromwell, the country's puritan leader, who thought the Valentine custom immoral. Valentine celebrations were totally suppressed in Britain and the American colonies until King Charles II came to the throne in 1660.

In some homes and apartments hot water comes gushing out of the faucet steaming hot — 175 degrees. Too hot with children and older persons around especially, according to the National Safety Council. Such hot water frequently leads to painful burns — and has caused deaths from accidental scalding.

Dominican College Music Associates will present the second public concert in the Chamber Music Series Sunday at 8 p.m. in Caleruega Hall on the San Rafael campus.

Cellist Andor Toth Jr. and Marilyn Thompson, pianist, will perform four sonatas by Kodaly, Beethoven, Debussy and Brahms.

A graduate, cum laude, of the San Francisco Conservatory of Music, Miss Thompson received a Fulbright grant to study at the Wiener Akademie fur Musik. She has been a soloist with the San Francisco Symphony conducted by Arthur Fiedler and the Stanford University Orchestra, where she performed the West Coast premiere of Roger Sessions's Piano Concerto.

Miss Thompson is currently studying for her master's degree at Stanford and teaches at the University of California, Santa Cruz, and the College of the Holy Names in Oakland.

Neighborhood Units Question General Plan

Novato neighborhood committees questioned parts of the city's preliminary housing policy statement and endorsed other parts at a joint meeting with the city planning commission Monday night.

The session was slated to give the five citizen committees, working on revision of the Novato area general plan, a chance to offer ideas before a housng policy is adopted.

Committee Five, from Loma Verde, Marin Country Club Estates and Hamilton Air Force Base, said the citywide priority should be limiting average housing density to 2.4 units "per buildable acre."

Meanwhile, it disagreed with an opinion by the city housing committee, which authored the preliminary policy statement, that many people are being excluded from living in Novato because of a "persistent rising cost of housing."

"The need for additional housing has not been assessed adequately," Committee Five reported.

On housing for low and moderate income families, the committee said it realized there might be a need, but expressed opposition to federally subsidized low-rent public housing programs.

"It is wrong to stigmatize disadvantaged people by concentrating them in such projects," the committee said in part.

Committee Two, from east of Highway 101 including Bel Marin Keys and Black Point, called for "concrete proof there is a definite need for low income housing in Novato."

A housing mix on a "free market," leased housing and privately subsidized housing were approved by Committee One, representing an area west of Highway 101 and north of Novato Boulevard, including San Marin.

Committee Three, from West Novato, south of Novato Boulevard, recommended that student housing to meet the needs of Indian Valley Colleges be spread throughout the community.

It endorsed low and moderate income housing in new residential developments where feasible, but recommended a control on the number of such units.

Reports from the committees will be studied by the city planning staff, and a public hearing will be held by the commission March 6 on a housing policy statement.

Naming Of Center To Be Delayed

Despite a groundswell of public opinion to name the student center at Tamalpais High School after the school's late assistant principal, the board has put off a decision until a policy on such christenings is drawn.

Supt. Wilber D. Hawkins said the board Monday directed him to draw up a policy prior to the opening of the new center April 15 so that it can be named after Mary McCurdy Baker, if the board desires.

Following her death Jan. 17, the board received more than 20 written requests from colleagues, former students and parents to name the student center after her.

Mrs. Baker had taught at Tamalpais High School since 1936. First in the English department, she later taught physical education and was dean of girls.

The Tamalpais High School board also:

FRESHMAN ENGLISH — Heard a report on a new freshman English program at Tamalpais High School that Hawkins termed "extremely well received." The program had been criticized by Edward Faber of Mill Valley, who wondered if enough basics were being taught and questioned the use of student aides.

FACILITIES — Heard it will be allowed to break a two-and-a-half-year lease on a building on Nellen Avenue that now houses the Redwood Continuation School. The lease with Robert Carmody of Greenbrae called for payment of $700 a month, plus $2,055 in annual property taxes. The district didn't feel the facilities were sufficient.

SCOUTS — Agreed to allow members of Boy Scout Troop 48 of Tiburon to install check dams on the district's Tiburon site to check erosion and earn member conservation merit badges.

SITE TAX — Asked the state Allocations Board to develop guidelines that would exempt some unused school sites from the property tax authorized by legislation last year.

DUPLICATION — On its fourth try, awarded a contract for $13,261 to Addressograph-Multigraph Corp. for duplicating equipment for Tamalpais High School. Board members Robert W. Corlett and Jerrold M. Ladar opposed the contract.

STEERERS — Set up an eight-man steering committee of the citizens advisory group. It was to have its first meeting today.

STUDENT CENTER — Directed staff to look into alternative plans to buying new furniture for the new student center at Sir Francis Drake High School.

Solution To Crowded Community House

The Novato Parks and Recreation Commission has recommended that the city consider putting a portable building on the recently acquired Rodoni property, adjacent to the Novato Community House, for governmental meezings.

If the proposed building were used for meetings, it would "free up" the heavily used community house for additional recreational activities, reported Edward S. Adams, park and recreation director.

He estimated the cost at $12,400 in the first year, including $6,100 toward lease-purchase of two portable classrooms, which would serve as one large meeting room or two smaller ones. Other first year costs would be 2,800 for furnishings, $2,500 for a divider wall and $1,000 for site preparation, Ajams said.

He recommended lease-purchase of the portable buildings at $6,100 a year for seven years to commissioners Monday night.

In another matter, commissioners approved a proposed five-year capital improvement program, updated from last year's program, that would require a tax rate increase of 30 cents per $100 per assessed valuation.

At the top of the list was completion of work at Pioneer Memorial Park. A land acquisition fund for purchase of the O'Hair property. Novato Boulevard and Sutro Avenue, was second, and start of development at three school playgrounds, Olive, Lynwood and Pleasant Valley, was listed third.

Since the commission is advisory, the determination on what will be done nd how much will be spent rests with the city council.

Commissioners recommended a pool budget of $13,375, up $225 from last year, and a community house budget of $14,555, up $1,055 from last year.

The Novato Parks Commission Also:

POST OFFICE — Heard a report from Adams that it would cost $2,500 to move Novato's first post office, now a home, from its site on South Novato Boulevard. Citizens to Preserve Novato's Landmarks, a local group, is trying to save the building, scheduled to be removed for ac apartment development.

TENNIS — Recommended that two lighted tennis courts be built at Pioneer Memorial Park after a study of other potential court sites.

COOPERATION — Received a request from the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission for a joint session of open space, parks and recreation.

30 Graduate At NCO School

Thirty students graduated recently in the first class of the Noncommissioned Officer's Leadership School at Hamilton Air Force Base, which serves the Aerospace Defense Command.

The school, which emphasizes academics rather than military training, was established to train young noncommissioned officers who are not eligible for the noncommissioned officer's academy, the Air Force reported.

Sgt. Richard Cook from Elgin Air Force Base, Fla., was the honor graduate.

Open Space Deadline To Be Beaten

An open space element to the Tiburon general plan is on schedule and expected to beat a June 30 deadline imposed by the California Legislature, the Tiburon Planning Commission has been told.

Planning Director Richard G. Arjo said the San Francisco planning firm of Williams and Mocine, which has been working on the element since September under a $16,000 contract, reported on progress Monday night.

The planning commission agreed to hold a special meeting at 8 p.m. Feb. 23 at city hall to review an environmental quality policy statement on which the final open space report will be based.

The policy ties open space and park acquisition to building and planning, highway construction, transportation and use of the downtown area, said Arjo.

If adopted by the city council after hearings before the planning commission, the policy would serve as a guideline for preparation of the open space element.

In other business, the commission rejected a request by Topodynamics Inc. to name a committee to work with the firm on design of a new plan for development of 44 acres in downtown Tiburon.

A proposal by the Los Angeles company was withdrawn last month in the face of stiff citizen protest.

Sex Perversion Arraignment Set

Curtis Phillip Walls, 63, of Novato, yesterday was bound over to Marin Superior Court on a felony charge of sex perversion.

He is to be arraigned Monday.

Shoreline Bond Vote To Be Discussed

Shoreline Unified School District trustees will discuss calling another bond election and seek public comment at 7:30 p.m. today at Tomales High School.

It will be the second of three meetings on the bond question in the aftermath of the defeat of a $1.2 million bond proposal by voters last month.

SPORT NOTES

New Hockey League May Shun Bay Area

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Perhaps Charles O. Finley will not get that Bay Area hockey competition fans have been expecting with the advent of the World Hockey Association.

Finley owns — among other playthings — the California Golden Seals hockey team and the Oakland A's baseball team. This space today concerns the hockey part of the action.

The embroyo World Hockey Association is ready to get off the ground this week with meeting and draft sessions scheduled Thursday through Sunday in the Royal Coach Hotel in Anaheim. Among those in attendance at the meetings will be R. Steven Arnold of Corte Madera, player personnel executive with the new league that promises to do battle with the established National Hockey League.

THERE ARE ALREADY 12 cities that will comprise the WHA, and San Francisco is one of the 12. But many persons, including Arnold, won't be surprised if San Francisco is dropped from the list of teams when the owners sit down to their meeting tomorrow.

"The support in San Francisco is not very good at all," said Arnold before packing his bags for Anaheim. "We (WHA officials) are discouraged with the San Francisco people. . . They're very pessimistic. We've got seven applications from other cities that want to come in." With a waiting list like that, San Francisco might not get a WHA team to compete with Charlie O. and the Seals. Lucky Charlie. He has enough trouble attracting big hockey crowds without any competition from a San Francisco team.

Among the 12 original cities in the WHA, half would be in direct competition with the NHL — New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, St. Paul, New England (a team to be located in a Boston suburb), and San Francisco. Four locations are in Canada — Edmonton, Winnipeg, Calgary and Hamilton, and the other two are Dayton, Ohio, and Miami, Fla.

ARNOLD DOESN'T feel it will be hard to stock all these teams with players, and expects to draw some of the stars from the National Hockey League.

"I've talked with close to 100 NHL players and they give me the impression that if the deal was right they would switch leagues," said Arnold. The majority of the players, however, would be coming from the junior hockey programs of Canada and minor leagues such as Western, International, Central and Eastern hockey leagues. "No, I don't think there will be a signing problem. These young, minor league players would be happy to be able to play major league hockey right off the bat."

Money? Arnold said each of the teams will have half a million dollars per year to use on player salaries. For 20 players per team, that would come out at $25,000 per player. But, of course, some would get more, some less.

AMONG THE established NHL players he has contacted are Ken Dryden, Montreal goaltender; Harry Howell of Los Angeles, Cesare Maniago, Minnesota goaltender; and Carol Vadnais of the Seals.

"We would sure like to get (goalie Gilles) Meloche of the Seals but he still has another year to go on his contract," said Arnold, adding that the WHA is signing only players whose contracts are to expire this year.

Among the potential NHL draftees, Arnold listed Seals Bobby Sheehan and Ivan Boldirev as sure "to go high." Among the young players raising WHA eyebrows are Stan Weir of Medicine Hat, Alta., the Western Canada League's No. 2 scorer so far this year, and Jacques Richard, of Quebec, the Quebec Junior League top scorer. Then there are U.S. Olympic team players like goalie Mike Curran and Kevin Ahearn and Tim Sheehy, the latter pair former teammates at Boston College.

WHAT ABOUT a bidding war? Is it expected between the WHA and NHL? "We hope to avoid a bidding war, but I don't see how it will be avoided when it comes down to the big stars," said Arnold.

President of the WHA is Gary Davidson, 37-year-old attorney from Santa Ana, and vice president is Dennis Murphy. Davidson was one of the founders of the American Basketball Association and Murphy was general manager of three different teams in the ABA.

And remember when they said the American Basketball Association would not get off the ground? Hmmmmm.

Bulldogs' Cage Hopes Suffer Severe Blow

By PAUL CANE

The "New" Marin Catholic High School Wildcats, the fast-breaking, driving squad that racked up 86 points last Friday, reverted back to their old offensive ways last night, but emerged on top of a narrow 53-49 decision over the host San Rafael Bulldogs.

"There's no way we could consistently outrebound them," related Wildcat coach Dave Gonsalves. "It's tough to drive their zone, so we had to shoot from outside," as they had in a disastrous beginning of the 1972 Marin County Athletic League basketball season.

Although going back to old offensive methods, Marin Catholic continued to implement its own zone defense, which not only kept the Bulldogs shooting from outside, but also cut down on the number of fouls, a statistic that had cost the Wildcats several games thus far in the MCAL scramble.

Forward Tim Stone poured in 13 points for Marin Catholic, but his main contribution was neutralizing the San Rafael rebound artists. The Bulldogs had the overall edge on the boards, 54-52, but Stone grabbed 15 to lead Marin Catholic.

"The main difference in this game from the last time we played them (San Rafael won, 65-55) was Stone," Gonsalves explained simply. "Last time he had the flu and was out, this time he scores 13 and gets 15 rebounds."

One of the best outside shooters for Marin Catholic is guard Jim Sullivan, who hit six field goals to finish a second leading scorer. Mickey Hurley was next with 11.

San Rafael led by seven at the end of the first quarter, and by four at the half. The Wildcats closed it to two at the end of the next period, and took the lead with Hurley's two free throws with 5:24 left in the game.

As evidence to Marin Catholic's cutdown in fouling, San Rafael only had 13 free throw attempts all night, as opposed to the remarkable 48 charity tosses given away by the Wildcats in a protested loss to San Marin two weeks ago.

Wayne Lechner and Donnie Canfield tied for San Rafael's scoring honors with 14 each, Lechner getting his by maneuvering underneath, and Canfield popping in jumpers from outside.

The win gave Marin Catholic a 3-6 record in league play, pending decision on the protest, while San Rafael's championship hopes probably were dealt an insurmountable blow with its third MCAL loss.

San Rafael Wrestlers Win Prep League Crown

San Rafael High School, which almost had convinced itself it couldn't win the Marin County Athletic League wrestling championship, yesterday convinced everybody else it could by defeating host Terra Linda, 31-28, in a packed Terra Linda High School gym.

The triumph gave the Bulldogs a 6-0 MCAL record and the title. Terra Linda finished second at 5-1. In other matches yesterday, Novato (4-2) clinched third place by defeating Tamalpais (2-3-1), 34-21; and Redwood (2-3-1) moved into a fourth-place tie with Tam by thrashing San Marin (1-5), 48-9. Drake (0-6) drew the bye.

Stunning upsets by Brian Duff (123 pounds), Rich Murphy (136) and Mike Milbauer (141) powered San Rafael over the Trojans. The victories may have resulted from a new attitude the Bulldogs took into the match.

"The guys stayed loose," said coach Larry Lack. "We didn't figure to win, so we just went out there and wrestled our best. We weren't emotionally involved like last year, when we were heavily favored and lost to Terra Linda."

"Our 98-pounder was ineligible," said Terra Linda coach Bob Hetherington. "You can't give away six points like that and expect to win."

Terra Linda's Mark Egide (106) and Mike Weinstein (115) won as expected, but San Rafael's Bryan Duff caused some raised eyebrows by pinning the Trojans' outstanding Augie Venezia in the second round. "That really got us going," said Lack.

The match reverted briefly to script as Terra Linda's Reggie Grant (130) triumphed, but then Murphy pinned the Trojans' rapidly-improving Bob Shaw.

Then Milbauer provided the shocker by dominating Terra Linda's exceptional Keith Rautio for a 7-0 victory. Now San Rafael was home free, as top-flight wrestlers Dave Hughes (148), Wolf Kristensen (157) and Al Garbarino (168) won lopsided decisions.

By this point, the score was 31-10, and Terra Linda's final three victories by pin were academic. Brian Jordan (178) remained undefeated for the Trojans.

DIANNE HOLUM

Gold For U.S. Skater

SAPPORO, Japan (UPI)— The United States gave Dianne Holum a place of honor at the opening ceremonies of the XI Winter Olympic Games last Thursday, and Wednesday she returned the favor.

Miss Holum, who was given the honor of carrying the flag for the U.S. team in the opening ceremonies parade, got the Star Spangled Banner played for the first time in the awards ceremonies when she earned the U.S. its first gold medal of the Olympics with a record-shattering victory in the 1,500-meter speedskating event.

The 5-foot-6, 123-pound coed from Northbrook, Ill., turned in the fastest clocking of her 10-year career as she turned back Dutch superstars Stein Bass-Kaiser and Atje Keulen-Deelstra in an Olymppc record time of two minutes, 20.85 seconds.

Miss Holum's time was far better than the previous olympic record of 2:22.40, set by Finland's Kaija Mustonen at Grenoble, France, in 1968 but somewhat short of the world record of 2:15.80 set by Mrs. Bass-Kaiser at Davos, Switzerland, last year.

Mrs. Bass-Kaiser, who still is not in top form following surgery on her leg, finished second with a time of 2:21.05 and Mrs. Keulen-Deelstra took the bronze medal with 2:22.05. The top five finishers all broke the previous Olympic record.

Miss Holum, who won a bronze and silver medal at Grenoble and is the only returning medalist on the U.S. squad, clocked nearly two seconds faster than she had ever done in her life in the 1,500 meters but she wasn't impressed at setting a record.

"I wasn't thinking about records because Olympic records aren't very great," she said. "There are new ones broken every four years. I am very happy with my gold medal, but I have two more races here and the world women's championships in Holland in March. And I have other things to do before I retire."

America's chances for at least one more gold medal in the remaining women's speedskating events also seem good.

Anne Henning, also of Northbrook, is one of the favorites in the 500 and 1,000 meters races while Miss Holum considers herself a candidate in both the 1,000 and 3,000 meters events.

"I'm an all-around skater. I'm working for all the races. I'm not counting myself out of anything," said Miss Holum.

U.S. speedskating coach John Werket of Minneapolis, Minn., said he thought Miss Henning would take the 500 meters Thursday, either Anne or Dianne would win the gold medal in the 1,000 meters Friday anb that Anne would come through in the 3,000 meters Saturday —A U.S. sweep.

The U.S. chances of getting a medal in either men's figure skating or the men's giant slalom ski are practically nil, however, after Wednesday's showing.

Two Americans, Ken Shelley of Downey, Calif., and John Mischa Petkevich of Great Falls, Mont., are fifth and sixth respectively after the conclusion of the compulsory figures in men's figure skating. They will need nearly flawless performances in Friday night's free skating program to have a chance at overhauling the leaders.

World champion Ondrej Nepela of Czcehoslavakia holds a 55point lead over Patrick Pera of France after the compulsory figures with Serguei Tchetveroukhin of Russia third and Jan Hoffman of East Germany fourth.

Tamalpais Erupts For 55-43 Victory

By LEW CODDINGTON

The Tamalpais High School basketball team devised an effective working model of a thunderbolt yesterday afternoon, hurled it at Drake in the third quarter, and charred the Pirates, 55-43, in a Marin County Athletic League game at College of Marin.

Drake raced out to a 10-2 lead and was still very much alive at halftime, trailing only 28-27. The Pirates somehow had negated Tam's superior height and speed, and in the process held league-leading scorer Will Garner to two points.

Then the thunderbolt struck. Five and a half minutes later, Tam's lead had shot up to 44-31, and dazed onlookers were asking themselves what had happened.

Tam first unleashed its height. Jared McFerrin got a tip and Garner got another one; Garner hit a short jumper, then McFerrin made a three-point play which he began by hitting an underhanded layup driving

Marin Tars, Canada Dons Vie Tonight

Two balanced-scoring advocates clash tonight at 8 o'clock in Kentfield when the host College of Marin Tars play Canada College of Redwood City in a Camino Norte Conference basketball rematch.

The Tars, seventh-rated among state junior college teams, defeated the Colts, 70-67, on Jan. 8 in Redwood City, thus the Peninsula quintet will be seeking revenge tonight in a battle pitting eight of the CNC's leading scorers.

The visitors trot out CNC scoring stars Steve Kircher, Billy Lewis, Ricky Watts and Ray Rotolo, while Marin counters with Joe Smith, Roosevelt Green, Joe Casteel and Joe DeMaestri.

Kircher is the CNC's third leading points producer, accounting for 137, 19 markers better than sixth rated Joe Smith. Green holds down the seventh slot with 112 points, three more than Watts and four better than Rotolo. Watts is ranked 10th, two pegs higher than Rotolo.

Casteel has notched 102 points for 14th, and DeMaestri has chipped in 95.

Although the balanced-scoring numbers leave little to choose from, the CNC rebounding figures clearly favor the Canada group. In fact, Canada's Watts leads the Bay Area in caroms with 343 for a 16.3 average in 21 games. No Marinite is rated among the top 13.

Possibly, the rebounding question will settle the Marin-Canada encounter. To negate any such Canada carom advantage, the Tars will likely adhere to their game plan of a deliberate attack, which stresses the short-range or "percentage" shot.

READ RIGHT MAN

Don Read (right), brother of College of Marin football coach Dick Read, was named quarterback and receiver coach at the University of Oregon Monday. He formerly was head coach at Portland State University, and is shown with his star Portland State quarterback, Tim von Dulm. The appointment marked another step up for the coaching Read family. the baseline. A short jumper inside by Garner made it 39-31.

Then Tam unleashed its speed. McFerrin hit Garner underneath with a long pass, then dribbled the length of the floor and sank a one-hander. All of a sudden, it was no contest.

Garner finished with 13 points, but was not the leader. That honor went to McFerrin, who scored 15 and "played his best league game," in the words of coach Bernie Schneider.

Tam utterly dominated the backboards, getting 39 rebounds to Drake's 15. Garner had 13, McFerrin nine and Mike Dinehart nine. The board work fueled Tam's fast break in the second half.

The score could have been worse. The Indians missed half a dozen fast-break layups, made just six of 13 free throws in the first half, and were called for goaltending three times.

Tam's man-on-man defense held its foe to 50 points or less for the seventh time in nine league games and the fifth time in a row. Drake made only four of 22 shots from the floor in the second half, none in the fourth quarter.

Ed Chavez, playing mostly in the fourth quarter and scoring mostly on free throws, led Drake with 11 points. Tom Carlisle had 10, all in the first half. Mark Daubenfeld made his first start for the Pirates since returning from an injury.

Redwood Cagers Turn Back Novato

Tim Hennessy made the absence of Steve McGee less noticeable by scoring 25 points and grabbing 14 rebounds as Redwood High School erased a two-point halftime deficit and trounced Novato yesterday at Redwood, 57-37.

The victory was the fifth straight for the Giants and gave them a 7-2 Marin County Athletic League basketball record, two games behind league-leading Tamalpais.

McGee, an all-league center, missed the game with a virus infection. "We're saving him for Thursday (against San Rafael)," said coach Dick Hart.

"The team did a good job of pulling together and showing we can win without him if need be."

Hennessy netted six points, guard Sam Farb five and forward Darrell Elder five in the third quarter, as Redwood outscored Novato 20-5 to put the game away.

"We played good team defense in the second half," said Hart. "Novato got only one field goal in the third quarter.

"Farb did a good job of controlling the game in the second half. We made only nine turnovers for the game."

The defeat was the fifth straight for Novato.

Hunt, Three Players Named To Grid 'Hall'

CANTON, Ohio (UPI)—Texas millionaire Lamar Hunt, who founded the American Football League when he was rebuffed in efforts to buy one of the existing teams of the NFL, will be inducted in the Pro Football Hall of Fame next summer.

In addition to Hunt, three former players also will be enshrined. The four constitute the smallest number chosen for any one year since the hall opened here in 1963.

The others are running back Ollie Matson, who played 14 years for the old Chicago Cardinals; Gino Marchetti, defensive end for the old Dallas Texans and the Baltimore Colts; and passer Clarence "Ace" Parker, who played with the old Brooklyn Dodgers, Boston and the New York Yankees of the old All-America Conference.

The new members of the hall, bringing its strength to 74, were selected by a 27-member board consisting of one media representative from each pro football city, plus the president of the Pro Football Writers Association.

Hall Director Dick Gallagher, who announced the enshrinees Tuesday, said Hunt, owner of the Kansas City Chiefs, was picked for his role in founding the AFL, which merged into the NFL in 1968.

Matson and Marchetti were chosen for the hall in their first year of eligibility.

Rancho Cotate Basketballers End Their Skid

Rancho Cotate High School ended a three-game losing streak and upped its record to 5-3 in Sonoma County League basketball play last night in Rohnert Park, as the Cougars overcame El Molino High School's slow down tactics to tame the Lions of Forrestville, 49-38.

Up by 15 after three quarters, the Cougars hit the fourth quarter blues again scoring only five points, but it was enough to keep Rancho Cotate within striking distance of second-place Sonoma High School.

The Cougars were led by Marshall Brant who scored 17 points and hauled down 18 rebounds, 16 of them in the first half, and Mike Cooper, a 6-foot-2 senior forward, with 14. Steve Wlodarcyzk, who leads Rancho Cotate in scoring and rebounding on the season, added nine points and controlled the ball on offense for the Cougars.

Hoza Paces San Marin Triumph

Hoza Wright scored 14 of his 31 points in the last quarter as San Marin High School came from behind yesterday evening to defeat Terra Linda, 70-65, in a Marin County Athletic League basketball game at Terra Linda.

The victory was the second in three starts for the Mustangs, who lost their first six, and enabled them to climb out of the MCAL cellar into a seventh-place tie with Novato.

San Marin was down by one point going into the fourth quarter, but pulled even at 61-61 on two Fred Doar free throws and seconds later forged ahead for good on a Doar field goal. Wright made three of the Mustangs' last four fielders, with Marty Larsen getting the other one.

Bart Saling scored 12 points, Doar 10 and Greg Mazeres 10 as San Marin generated firepower from every position. Larsen had seven. Terra Linda got 20 points from Nick Mattos, 16 from Mark Lowey and 15 from Eric Borcherding.

San Marin shot 50 per cent in the second half, sinking 15 field goals in 30 attempts. For the game, the two teams' shooting was nearly equal, with San Marin making 27 of 64 and Terra Linda 27 of 65. Terra Linda commanded the backboards, 34-26.

Wright became only the fourth MCAL player to hit the 30 mark this season, behind Will Garner of Tamalpais (twice) ce) and Steve McGee and Tim Hennessy of Redwood. His 15 field goals tied the seasonal high by Hennessy.

International Federation Moves Against 2 Skiers

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

SAPPORO, Japan — The International Ski Federation (FIS) is investigating charges against two skiers, including France's former world champion Annie Famose, for violating its eligibility rules, president Marc Hodler said today.

Hodler said Miss Famose, 27, has been told she will be suspended tomorrow afternoon unless she can prove that charges she has violated FIS amateur eligibility rules are not true. Hodler refused to name the second skier involved.

Hodler did say, howevera that Austrian star Karl Schranz, kicked out of the Olympics by the International Olympic Committee (IOC) for professionalism, was not the other skier.

He is believed to be Patrick Russel of France, since an advertisement in a French newspaper (L'Equipe) said Miss Famose and Russel would be doing radio reporting from the Olympics for a European radio station (radio Luxembourg). Russel did not attend the Olympics, however, since he broke his leg in a pre-Olympic race.

Drake J.V.s Triumph Again; Streak Now 9

The Little Green Machine was operating at peak efficiency yesterday, as Drake High School's junior varsity basketball team defeated its ninth straight Marin County Athletic League foe, whipping Tamalpais, 62-47, as Jeff Guidi scored 16 points and Dan Howard 14.

Ron Cuneo scored 17 points and Gregg Cudworth and Rick Mullin grabbed 17 rebounds between them as Terra Linda topped San Marin, 60-49.

Warriors Hurting, Winning

OAKLAND (UPI) —The Golden State Warriors are still hurting—and still winning.

They made it 17 of their last 21 before a good Tuesday night home crowd of 4,431 when they outgunned Baltimore 111-107.

Not only did big Clyde Lee miss his first Warrior game in the last 266 with a hamstring pull, but Cazzie Russell also saw little action after pulling up lame in the second quarter. In addition, Jeff Mullins is still not in top form after his leg injury.

That left it up to reserve Bob Portman and he was the difference as he hit 12 points and got a career high 19 rebounds in 32 minutes of play.

The Warriors were down 47-29 when they turned things around thanks to Portman and big Nate Thurmond, who registered another sensational performance.

Nate scored 38 points and grabbed 23 Rebounds in dominating the action as he has most of the way through the Warriors' hot streak.

The new DOUBLE EAGLE POLYSTEEL TIRE
Polyester cord for smoothness/Steel belts for protection

The Double Eagle trademark has been a tradition with us ever since 1922, the year we first reserved it for Goodyear's finest tire. The first Double Eagle was simply "extravagantly good." Today's namesake honors this tradition. Four body plies of polyester cord, two additional plies of steel cord in stabilizing belts that encircle the body, a tread engineered for luxury car performance, a sidewall designed for sheer elegance. And we've put our confidence in this tire in writing — in a superb service and maintenance policy. The Double Eagle Polysteel tire by Goodyear.

BOATING

Boat Production Figures Double

Sometime early this summer the 9,000,000th pleasure boat will be launched in American waters. As of Jan. 1, statistics compiled from state boat registrations and the manufacturers' production figures showed there were 8,981,000 boats of all types in use.

It's broken down this way: 5,315,000 outboard powered craft; 2,384,000 rowboats, dinghies, canoes and other miscellaneous unpowered craft; 639,000 inboard powered boats including sailboats with auxiliary engines; 643,000 sailboats without power of any kind.

In the outboard group the boats and motors sold in 1971 Tended to be larger than ever Average length of the 278,000 outboard craft sold last year was 15.6 feet compared with 15.4 feet in 1970. The 495,000 outboard motors sold in 1971 averaged 35.6 hp, compared with 31 hp in 1970.

The figures indicate that recreational boating can still lay claim to being the nation's top family sport.

We've paraded these rather astonishing figures because of some statistical questions we've been asked:

Q. Is it true that 1970 was such a bad year that hundreds of marinas went into bankruptcy?

A. There is much truth in this, but exact figures are not available. It's significant that the industry figures show the same number of marians (4,500) in business at the end of 1971 as were in business at the end of 1970, yet the number has been increasing at the rate of about 100 a year prior to that. Howard Larson, Boating Industries Association President, summed it up: "We all took a nose Dive in '70, but the comeback in '71 was amazing."

Q. Will the number of boat trailers increase rapidly in the next few years? I'm thinking of starting a business . . . .

A. The saturation point in trailers was reached about 10 years ago; now trailer production keeps pace with the number of trailerable boats being produced. In 1971, 220,000 boat trailers were produced. There are now 3,742,000 in use, the industry estimates.

Q. I've just bought a small kicker for my fishing punt and the dealer tells me I'll need life preservers. What gives?

A. Once you put a motor on even the smallest boat, you must carry a life jacket for each person aboard. In a couple of months it's likely the Coast Guard will announce that all craft, regardless of size or power, will be required to carry such life jackets. This is being done under authority of the Federal Boat Safety Act of last August.

Q. What does the Coast Guard approval on a life preserver or buoyant vest really signify?

A. The whole idea is to set up standards upon which the public can rely. An approved life preserver is one you can depend on if you treat it right.

Anyway, if you are stopped and inspected, only "approved" life preservers are counted.

Petaluma Cagers Triumph

By PAUL DWORIN

Exploding for 55 second half points, Petaluma High School won its seventh basketball game in a row and gained sole possession of first place in the North Bay League last night by defeating visiting Vallejo High School, 88-67.

The Trojans of Petaluma always seem to win the big games, and last night's was a must, as the Vallejo Apaches were tied with Petaluma for the league lead with a 6-1 record.

The first half was a toss-up as first Vallejo took a seven-point lead and then Petaluma caught up and went ahead by eight, only to go to the locker room one point down at half, 36-35. The second half was all Petaluma's as the Trojans' John Zakariassen came out and hit three straight 20-footers to put the men from Troy ahead for good.

Zakariassen, a 6-foot guard with a fine shooting touch, was outstanding as he hit from everywhere on the court to record a game high 25 points. Zakariassen, or as Trojan fans call him, "Mr. Outside," shot a blistering 62.5 per cent from the field and 83.3 per cent from the line to lead Petaluma's attack.

Spearheading Petaluma's defense was senior guard Kevin Gillmore. In what Trojan coach Bob Donahue calls Gillmore's finest game, Kevin stole six passes, led the team with five rebounds, scored eight points and got an incredible 19 assists.

Against both Vallejo's zone defense and the Apaches' fourth quarter man-to-man tactics, the Trojans popped in 50.7 per cent from the field and 81.8 per cent from the line.

Terra Linda Freshman Edge Marin Catholic

Jeff Kramer tied the score in regulation with a free throw and Terra Linda High School pulled away in overtime to defeat Marin Catholic in a crucial freshman basketball game yesterday, 42-40.

The triumph elevated Terra Linda into a first-place tie with Marin Catholic at 8-2. Drake remained in third place at 6-4 thrashing San Rafael, 51-38, behind Mike Ghiringhelli's 18 points.

TOO MUCH FOR U.S.

Russ Skaters Win, 7-2

SAPPORO, Japan (UPI)—A machine-like Russian hockey team, playing a methodical, precise brand of hockey and taking advantage of American mistakes, skated to an easy 7-2 victory tonight over the United States in Olympic Class A competition.

The Americans never had a chance against the Russians, who moved into a first-place tie with Sweden in the round-robin Olympic tournament.

Only a dazzling display of goal tending by Mike Curran prevented the Soviets from scoring virtually at will before a capacity crowd of nearly 10,000 in Makomanai Indoor Olympic Skating Rink.

The Americans skated hard in the first period and kept up with the Russians, but they made two crucial mistakes which cost them goals. At 10:46 they got caught with too many men on the ice and the Russians were quick to take advantage when Yurii Blinov picked up a rebound in front of the goal and shot it past Curran, who had come out to make the initial save.

Seven minutes later, U.S. defenseman Tom Mellor fell and gave Russian star Valerii Charlamov a Clean breakaway on Curran, who never had a chance.

The Americans had several good scoring chances, but their shooting was off, and Russian goalie Vladislaw Tretiak had little difficulty in keeping them off the scoreboard.

Curran had 19 saves for that period, some of them spectacular efforts. At 17:15 he came out of his net to stop a two-on-one breakaway.

In the second period the Russians came out fast, scoring two goals within 26 seconds in the fourth minute. Alexandre Maltsev scored the first of his goals when he took a feed pass from behind the net and poked it past Curran.

Vikoulov scored at 4:31 when he fired a clean shot from 30 feet out. At 8:50 the Americans made another costly mistake when Defenseman Frank Sanders deflected a Russian pass into the net. Maltsev was credited with the goal.

Curran continued to turn back thrust after thrust by the Russians despite the three goals in the second period. He was a firebrand on ice, yelling instructions and at one point breaking his stick over the back of a Russian. Surprisingly, he was not penalized.

The U.S. team came up fighting in the third period and held the Russians to a 2-2 draw. Sanders put the Americans on the scoreboard at 4:26 when he took a pass from Tim Sheehy and slipped it by Tretiak.

Russia countered with two goals by Evguenii Zimine and Guennadii Tsygankov, and then ROn Naslund poked in a goal in a scramble around the Russian net.

Arkady Chernychev, coach of the Russian team, said he told his team to take it easy tonight and not to risk getting hurt because of another game Thursday against Poland.

U.S. Coach Murray Williamson called this the best American game against a Russian team in seven or eight years.

"We stayed with them and played them equal in the third period," William said. "I take my hat off to a band of courageous kids. They were down 5-0 but they had their hearts in it."

Williamson suggested to his team that they should be a little more aggressive in the third period.

"It was a game we were hoping to win and then we were down 5-0," The American coach said. "You can tend to feel sorry for yourself and I had to shake them up. We were not going to be blown off the map by any Russian team."

Curran said he was lucky not to draw a penalty when he broke his stick over the back of a Russian player.

"The ref was very nice to me. He only said 'don't do it again,'" Curran said.

OLYMPICS

U.S. is hopelessly out of the running. The first heat was run Wednesday and the best American finisher was Robert Coch0 ran of Richmond, Vt., who could do no better than 19th.

The leader after the first heat is Norway's Erik Haaker with a time of 1:37.70 but close behind are Alfred Hagn of Germany and Gustavo Thoeni of Italy, the current world champion. The final heat will be run today with the winner determined on combined times from the two runs.

The big surprise of Wednesday's first heat was a spill taken by World Cup leader Henri Duvillard of France. Duvillard, one of the favorites in the giant slalom, caught his ski on a gate and was one of several to take a tumble during the run.

In two other gold medal events contested Wednesday, Galina Koulacova of Russia became the third athlete at the Games to win two gold medals as she took the women's five-kilometer cross-country race and Magnar Solberg of Norway successfully defended his Olympic title in the biathlon.

Solberg, a 35-year-old policeman, took one hour, 15 minutes and 55.5 seconds to complete the biathlon, which is a Combination of cross-country skiing and rifle marksmanship.

NBA ROUNDUP

West Hits 33 Points For Lakers

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

This was supposed to be Jerry West's last season, but at the rate the Los Angeles title express is traveling the Laker backcourt whiz may be around for quite a spell.

"I was tired early in the season," West admits, "but after playing about 20 games I seemed to find new strength."

West's name didn't show up in the National Basketball Association statistics this week because he was one game shy of the required 50 when the stax went to press. But based on those 49 games, West was hitting at a 25.3 average and handing off assists at a 9.3 clip.

McCovey's Patience Helps Him Get MVP

(First of a series on Giants' Willie McCovey)

Patience is a virtue Willie McCovey learned so well that it ultimately helped him win the National League's Most Valuable Player award in 1969, baseball's highest individual honor which McCovey would dearly love to win again this season.

McCovey didn't learn patience overnight. It took him two seasons to cultivate it — 1968-69. Prior to 1968 pitchers could tease McCovey into striking at bad pitches. His strikeout average was 100 a season. In 1968 he began waiting for his pitch.

BY THE END of the 1968 season McCovey trimmed his strikeouts to 71, his walks were identical (71) and he wound up as the NL's 1968 home run (36) and RBI champ (105).

By the end of the 1969 season McCovey not only trimmed his strikeouts to 66 but now was the most feared batter in the league. Pitchers walked him 121 times, including 45 intentional walks, a major league record. His 45 homers and 105 RBIs won him the 1969 MVP title.

As the 1970 season opened, McCovey said: "Patience is the key. I hope to keep it going that way." He did. He hit 36 homers and knocked in 126 runs in 1970 while accepting 137 walks, 40 of them intentional.

LAST SEASON, McCovey was as patient as ever but it was a painful year for him, literally. He had long become accustomed to playing in pain with an arthritic right knee but in the next to last Cactus League exhibition game of 1971 he jammed his left knee, severely damaging cartilage which was to keep him out of action for more than one-third of the 1971 season.

Still, in the 105 games McCovey did play he demonstrated that even on two ailing knees he could buggywhip fear into enemy pitchers. They had lost none of their respect for him. They walked him 64 times, 21 intentionally. And despite his handicap he produced 18 homers, 70 RBIs and eight game-winning hits, just three under Willie Mays' team-leading total of 11. His 1971 strikeout total of 57 was his all-time low but he also missed 57 games.

"Even though 1969 was my greatest year," he said, "I've always felt within myself that I'm capable of matching it. I'm not predicting that I will but I have the confidence of being able to do it.

"The secret of my success in winning the MVP was patience in waiting for my pitch. I'm not a bad ball hitter. I must wait for my pitch."

McCOVEY WAS the only player named on all 24 MVP ballots in 1969. He received 11 first place votes, 9 seconds, 2 thirds and 2 fourths for a total of 265 points to beat the Mets' Tom Seaver (243).

"If there's anything other than winning the MVP that could make me happier, it would be winning a pennant but that's a team effort."

Utilities For Best Growth

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I read in your column that Southern and Western utilities are good investments. What ones do you recommend? — S.S.

A. Because of the vastess of their service areas and the density of the populations involved, utilities in these sections offer good growth prospects along with, in most cases, adequate income. Of the firms which fit this description, Hawaiian Electric, Kentucky Utilities, Pacific Power and Light and Utah Power and Light, all NYSE listed, are among many suitable for investment.

Hawaiian Electric derives over 80 per cent of its sales from Oahu, the remainder being generated on other Hawaiian islands. While the firm has enjoyed consistent revenue and earnings growth over the last five years, profit comparisons for the most recent interim edged lower. After higher fixed charges and other deductions, net income slipped 3.4 per cent. Improvement is forecast, however, aided by the continued buildup of the Hawaiian Islands. Stock presently returns 5.4 per cent, a portion of which should remain nontaxable as income through 1972.

Kentucky Utilities supplies electricity to a population of roughly 730,000 in some of Kentucky's most productive sections. Revenue growth has been uninterrupted over the past decade, 1971s results proving no exception. Company earned $2.56 a share for the twelve Months ended December, down slightly reflecting an increase in the number of shares outstanding. Favorable future prospects coupled with the issue's present yield of around 6.0 per cent cent render shares attractive.

Also sporting 10-year records of continuous growth are Pacific Power and Light and Utah Power and Light. Both of these utilities serve populations of over 1 million in highly industrialized areas. For the 12 months ended December, Pacific posted a 27 per cent year-to-year rise in income equal to $1,93 a share. Utah posted similarly favorable results for the 12 months ended November with revenue gaining 10 per cent and per share profits up 12 per cent to $3.42.

FORD'S NEW COMPACT PICKUP

The new Japanese-manufactured Courier is powered by an 1800-cubic centimeter, four-cylinder engine with a four-speed manual transmission. The car's front end design shows a strong resemblance to the Ford pickup line. The Courier will go on sale March 17 and will be represented in Marin by J and B Ford Sales, Corte Madera; Lyons-Ryan Ford, San Rafael, and Novato Ford.

Chief Picked For Bank Subsidiary

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — R. Thomas Decker, 34, has been named president of Wells Fargo Leasing Corp., a newly formed subsidiary of Wells Fargo & Co., Richard P. Cooley, president of the parent company, has announced.

Decker was formerly senior vice president-marketing, Gatx-Armco-Boothe, San Francisco, an arm of the Boothe organization which specializes in the leasing of multimillion dollar transportation equipment.

Organized with an initial capitalization of $10 million, Cooley said the new firm is projecting receivables of more than $200 million at the end of its first five years in business.

The subsidiary has opened headquarters on California Street and offices in Los Angeles, with expectations of expanding nationally and internationally.

The company will finance equipment leases of $50,000 upwards on a broad range of capital assets. Wells Fargo Leasing Corp. will own the equipment, purchasing it outright from the manufacturer for lease to its customers.

Decker began his business career in 1961 as a computer programmer and systems analyst for Lockheed Corp. in Sunnyvale. He joined Boothe Computer Corp. in 1967. In 1968 he joined Gatx-Armco-Boothe, acting in various capacities prior to his appointment as senior vice president-marketing.

Marin City Branch Is Being Eyed

A Better Business Bureau neighborhood office may be opened in Marin City this year, a bureau spokesman said yesterday.

Leo Harth, staff supervisor for neighborhood offices for the San Francisco Better Business Bureau, said five neighborhood offices were opened in San Francisco last year and the bureau hopes to open 10 more in 1972.

There is a "good possibility" one could be in Marin City, he said.

Hearth said the offices are geared especially for aiding low income and minority group persons.

Once the bureau is satisfied that needs in San Francisco are being met, it will evaluate areas outside the city for possible sites, he said.

At least three areas in San Francisco still hold top priority for future neighborhood offices, he said.

NEW MANAGER — Brian (Red Daley) of Novato has succeeded Margo Margossian in charge of the San Rafael Sherman Clay store. Reared in Marin, he has been with the company five years in San Rafael, downtown San Francisco and more recently at the Stonestown store. He is an accomplished organist.

Count Down

DETROIT (BW) — Chrysler Corp. has reported sales of 45,277 new passenger cars in the last 10-day period of January.

Dividend Set

LOS ANGELES (BW) — The board of directors of Alex Colman Inc. has declared a quarterly cash dividend of 10 cents a share on the common stock, payable March 20 to shareholders of record Feb. 28.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY
28 SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1972 EDITORIAL PAGE

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Good News For Our Lovers Of Outdoors

The Bureau of Outdoor Recreation approved a federal grant of $166,200 to pay half the cost of improving McNear Beach County Park.

And the House of Representatives passed a bill for national park expansion which included $950,000 to add nearly 50 acres to Muir Woods National Monument. The bill already had passed the Senate.

Thus improvement and expansion of two Marin open spaces, to keep them open for use by the public, is assured.

THE McNEAR BEACH project will mean this newest of the county parks can be made more useful and attractive for more people. The county is to put up $155,500, with $10,800 coming from the state — the last of Marin's funds from the $150 million state park bond issue of 1964. The federal government is matching these funds.

The Muir Woods addition will incorporate the former Camp Monte Vista into the national monument. This definitely increases the permanent open space for outdoor recreation, since the land has been in residential zoning, having once been subdivided for a real estate development that foundered.

Adding this acreage to Muir Woods National Monument had been propsoed in several bills in past sessions of Congress, but without success. This time the addition went through both houses with little trouble.

THESE TWO ACTIONS indicate the increasing interest in preserving open space for public use. Incidentally, they show that those who loudly complain that our county, state and national lawmakers and bureaucracies are unconcerned with the environment are wrong.

Marinites and Marin visitors will gain by both of these projects. Another stand of redwood trees will be saved. Residents of the county will have a better place to play at McNear Beach.

Put together, the two projects come to over $1,300,000. That is not a paltry sum of money. But it will pay interest to this generation and generations to come —interest in the form of making life that much better in Marin.

Pigeons And Fertility

Though Marin is not so pigeon-prone as the big cities where this controversial bird has adopted high-rise buildings as a substitute for its ancestral nesting places, we still have built enough artificial cliff to attract a few wild flocks.

Prehistoric diggings in the Middle East reveal that man and pigeons have been companions since the former began making houses. In ancient times, the pigeon was regarded as a sacred creature, associated with the fertility goddess, Ishtar.

The pigeon's habits make him a model fertility symbol. Pigeons are blatant in their mating and have a long and productive breeding season. Their fertility, in fact, causes great concern in urban centers where pigeons thrive and have become a nuisance.

California Supreme Court Now Writes Its Own Law

By RUS WALTON

The California Supreme Court and I do not always agree. Which may not bother the seven justices, but it does bother me.

For example: The State Supreme Court voided the requirement of a two-thirds voter approval of school bond issues. Fortunately, the U.S. Supreme Court reversed that decision; property owners have little enough say over their taxes as it is.

Then there's abortions. The State Supreme Court seems to feel "therapeutic abortion" is an inalienable right for minor females — akin to freedom of speech and assembly. I believe the minors' parent should have something to say. But then, I'm old-fashioned.

And, what about instructing juries trying a capital offense? For years lower courts sanctioned instructing such juries that life imprisonment without parole could mean the convict would be out of prison and on the streets in seven to 10 years.

The State Supreme Court put a stop to that. They held that juries should not be told that truth about so-called "life imprisonment." Said it might unduly influence jury members on a death penalty verdict.

I say that court decision was tantamount to playing roulette with the safety of society.

AND THEN THERE'S the matter of property rights.

I believe a person holding title to a piece of property has certain rights of control over that property. The court, obviously, disagrees.

It held that if you permit the public access across your property for five years you have dedicated such public access — forever.

There is really no need to belabor the Court's recent decision on the reapportionment mess, that expeditious decree replete with error and constitutional improprieties. But please permit me one final barb on the matter.

That's exactly what it did by enforcing the congressional redistricting plan which Governor Reagan had vetoed. Under that remapping edict, residents in one six-block area of Los Angeles County were not placed in any congressional district. None at all.

Under that same court-decreed redistricting, another area in Los Angeles was placed within two overlapping congressional districts.

Of course, they'll scramble around and adjust those errors. But, what kind of sloppy adjudicating is that?

ALL OF THAT is secondary to my prime concern about certain of the court's actions.

I figure the State Supreme Court is part of the judicial branch of government, and that it should act like the judicial. There are times, however, when the court seems to think it is a quasi-legislative body, It not only interprets the law, it makes its own. And there goes the separation of powers.

A savings and loan association was charged with negligence involving a construction project. The complaint was that the construction did not come up to standards and the lending institution should have made sure that it did. The court agreed.

But there was no law requiring the lender to make such inspections. So the court wrote its own — and boasted that was just what it was doing. Said the court:

"There is no assurance, however, the Legislature will undertake such a task. In the absence of actual or prospective legislative policy, the court is free to resolve the case before it and indeed must resolve it in terms of common law."

Movie Managers Neglect Children

I am eight years old and I like to go to movies. There have been no movies in Marin for children to see in the past month. This does not seem right to me. I wish movie managers would think of the children.

Elderly Have Votes, Need Some Tax Relief

Mr. Rus Walton, "Sacramento Scene," I-J issue Jan. 14, reported from a reliable source, 1.8 million senior citizens 65 and over in California. They are 10 per cent of our state population. Their votes really count at the ballot box. . .

There is no doubt senior citizens and their organizations will be sought after by astute politicians seeking favor.

It is gratifying to learn elderly citizens and their organizations have a potential wallop recognized in political circles in California.

In these elder citizens organizations there are proud retired small homeowners who are obliged to cut their medical needs. They are trying to save the ownership of their homes. They are living far below the American living standards. All this to no avail, as the yield on their small investments, acquired during their active years, does not suffice an economy rife with inflation. . .

In this modern time a plea to the state to quit the abuse of the ad valorem tax still used against these retired elderly homeowners on meager incomes. A state fund (should) be set up, where these elderly owners on fixed incomes pay a nominal tax based on the small income they receive.

The California inheritance tax department should also contribute part of their revenue to the state fund set up, to alleviate the plight of our elderly retired citizens . . . so they can live their declining years secure in the comfort of the homes they own.

What's Track Record Of Taxpayer Group?

Last night, the Marin public read Chapter V of a series of political advertisements condemning the entry of the Golden Gate Bridge District into ferry service. Thus far, approximately $1500 in advertising fees has been spent to save all of us from an "arrogant . . . government."

The district is not above deserved criticism, but why this? Any commuter can testify that even the current level of automobile traffic on the Waldo is too much. The use of our waterway for ferryboats is clearly an idea worth both consideration and development. The district appears to be doing a credible job in the public interest, and deserves at least a wait and see attitude.

They do operate the best bridge in the bay's system, and are the only ones to treat the public with some respect. At 25 cents they are still a bargain bridge. Where have they taxed us beyond what is done by the other bridge authority; and when have they failed to pay their bills?

Who is responsible for "MCTA," and what is financing their expensive advertising? They have told us at length what they are against; now what are they for? They appear to be almost unknown, excepting their ads. Do they prefer a smoggy Marin, carpeted with autos?

If MCTA has both better ideas and a better track record than the district, why don't they devote an article to that?

State Could Make Trials More Simple

In force since Dec. 15, 1971, two articles in the U.S. Constitution Bill of Rights (Articles VI and VIII) must be followed in all criminal prosecutions. Trial rules and procedures are left to the states, and must only meet the specifications in Articles VI and VIII. These articles can only be altered by constitutional amendment.

Article VI says, "In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the state and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have the assistance of counsel for his defense."

Article VIII says, "Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishment inflicted." When the Constitution was written, hanging was acceptable.

Defense counsels sometimes claim a judge assigned to a case is not impartial. This is an insult, and in effect is calling a judge incompetent - a claim which should have to be proved before a judge is removed . . .

Then we have motions filed . . . practically perpetual motions, which can drag out for a year or more. This violates Article VI by not giving the accused a speedy trial.

Finally, we have to get an impartial jury of 12.

For serious and vicious crimes we require a 12 person jury to arrive at a unanimous decision. This should be changed to a 10 or 11 decision being acceptable. A clver defense attorney, by his rhetoric and acting ability, can very often sway the vote of one or two jurrors from the facts presented.

The State Legislature, by making a few changes in court procedure could save money for the taxpayers of the counties and state without violating anyone's civil rights or the U.S. Constitution . . .

Today is Wednesday, Feb. 9, the 40th day of 1972.

The morning stars are Mercury and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Saturn.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Aquarius.

President William Harrison was born Feb. 9, 1773.

On this day in history:

In 1825 the U.S. House of Representatives elected John Quincy Adams president after no candidate in December, 1824, election received the necessary majority.

In 1900 in Chicago, 7,000 construction workers voted to strike for an eight-hour day.

In 1950 Wisconsin Sen. Joseph McCarthy charged that the State Department was infested with Communists.

Democratic Doves Repudiate Their Own Proposed Commitments

WASHINGTON — What would you think of American political leaders who made these commitments for ending the war in Vietnam and then repudiated every one of them:

2—Insist upon "negotiating a mutual withdrawal of all U.S. forces and all North Vietnamese troops from South Vietnam."

3—Assure the South Vietnamese people that they will have "full responsibility for determining their own political destiny."

5—Finally and repeatedly: "Our troops will leave and those of North Vietnam will also depart."

ONE CAN EASILY imagine what the hard-core critics of President Nixon would be saying if he had made these commitments and things stood as they are in Vietnam today.

Well! The commitments listed above — to oppose unilateral withdrawal of U.S. forces, to assure that all North Vietnamese troops as well as all American troops will depart, to secure the right of South Vietnam to determine its own political destiny — these commitments were all made by the presently hard-core critics of Nixon's Vietnam policy: the McGoverns, the Fulbrights and the others at the 1968 Democratic convention.

THESE COMMITMENTS constituted the heart of the Democratic minority plank on Vietnam and they were rejected by Vice President Humphrey, Sen. Edmund Muskie and the majority of the Chicago delegates on the ground that they were too soft!

These were the commitments by doves in 1968 and in making them they were assuring the American people that their proposals would end the war and that "just as soon as the Communists understand our limited goals and are willing to take their chances as we are on letting the choice of a postwar government of South Vietnam be determined freely and peacefully by all of the South Vietnamese people, then the bloodshed and the tragedy can stop."

IF WE ARE TO APPLY to the hard-core get-out-of-Vietnam-faster critics the same criteria they apply to others, then they must be seen as creating the most gaping credibility gap of all.

They told the nation that they opposed unilateral U.S. withdrawal; now they favor it.

They told the nation they would negotiate only for "mutual withdrawal" of both allied and North Vietnamese forces; now they demand fast U.S. withdrawal without any North Vietnamese withdrawal.

They told the nation they stood behind South Vietnam's right to decide its own political future; now they abandon it. Isn't this the stuff out of which credibility gaps are supposed to be made?

IT IS QUITE POSSIBLE that the advocates of instant withdrawal from Vietnam and the advocates of paced withdrawal are both responding in different ways to changed conditions.

But the McGoverns, the McCarthys, the Fulbrights, the Kennedys, the McCloskeys and "you-can-now-trust-me" Muskies are still attacking the President's credibility, but like to appear as if their own credibility couldn't possibly be called into question. It can.

Democratic Candidates Find Themselves Ignored In Florida

MIAMI, Fla. — Five weeks before any election, it is hagd to get the voters' attention. That far ahead of an early primary in which there are nearly a dozen candidates, some of them utter strangers to the electorate, their pronouncements have a lot in common with the tree that fell in Big Cypress Swamp but didn't make any noise because nobody heard it except two alligators and a great blue heron.

One of these many Democrats' problems here in Florida is coverage of their elaborately planned "news" events — or rather, in most cases, noncoverage. The unpleasant truth that the past couple of years have been lean ones in the newspaper business has forced publishers to squeeze their news budgets hard for this year although presidential election years always demand the heaviest travel and communications expenses.

IF A TYPICAL news executive tells his editors they are budgeted the same amount to cover this year's politics that they spent in 1968, that sounds reasonable. That was a hyperactive year, after all. However, it was a year when there were no more than two or three candidates active simultaneously in only six major primaries. This is a year when there are 13 politicians, at a fast count, running in 23 primaries, major and minor. Combine that with the fact that hotel and restaurant prices are the only cost of living giving any real competition to medical care in the inflation spiral, and you can see how that 1968 political coverage budget will be stretched extremely thin this year.

Thus, any editor thinking ahead is going to hold down his expenses now and look beyond to those later primaries when the number of candidates has been trimmed and the most newsworthy candidates have been established. Atthis stage in Florida that means the minor candidates are nearly ignored by the national press and the major ones have barely a skeleton crew of reporters and cameramen following them about.

Even Hubert Humphrey, with his chartered twin-jet 737, often finds it virtually empty of press. Muskie, who usually attracts the greatest coverage, still has plenty of seats available on his four-engine prop-jet Electra. (For those news organizations who can afford it, that is. Contrary to amazingly widespread belief, the press covering national candidates always pays its own way, and is billed by the candidates on a prorated basis, not only for every mile it flies and every bus ride it takes, but also for every Bloody Mary it consumes.)

ALL THIS MEANS that in Florida, the less familiar candidates like Rep. Shirley Chisholm and Sen. Henry Jackson are finding it even harder to get their names and faces before the public than is normally the case for newcomers to national campaigning. It also means that the ones with excess cash to spend on paid publicity will have more of an advantage than usual.

Therefore, although Florida is a big, varied state, hard to span through one or a few television or newspaper outlets, you can expect a flood of televised spot and billboard ads from Mayor John Lindsay and anybody else who can pay for them in the final two weeks of the primary campaign. You also can expect all the serious candidates to rev up their travel schedules within the state, in the knowledge that the local media are much more likely to give you attention when all it costs them is a cab ride.

The result is that Mr. Nixon is going to succeed even beyond his plans in taking the play away from his challengers in the first months of his re-election year. Months back, it was clear that his travels to China and the Soviet Union were going to dominate the news this winter and spring, and pre-empt even more of the evening news on television than the presidency usually uses up. Now we see that the contest is not going to be merely for air time and newspaper space, but also for those thinly stretched dollars committed to news coverage this year — and that the President is going to win it in a shrug.

WHEN FLORIDA FIRST set up this early primary, there was a consensus that it would be automatically of major importance, far overshadowing New Hampshire because of the state's size and complexities. These later circumstances, plus the likelihood that George Wallace may win here and all the others may wind up in an indistinguishable mass behind him, diminish Florida's standing — although they do nothing to upgrade the New Hampshire voting. They make the later big-state trials, from Wisconsin through California, even more essential to the serious candidates than they seemed last fall.

But they do not nullify the practice the Democrats are getting in Florida in sharpening the issues most of them will take to the people when they finally turn their attention toward Mr. Nixon instead of each other. On the value-added tax, for example, if on few other things, the President is likely to find a broad and united front of ambitious Democrats in his way.

Gale winds up to 85 miles per hour accompanied a three-inch rainfall to flood Marin lowlands, topple trees, and wash out sections of roads.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By THERON NEWELL

Army Corps Of Engineers Has Sometimes Made Mistakes

If the people of Ross, San Anselmo and Fairfax do not want a straightened creek, perhaps in a concrete ditch, they should not have to have it. If they prefer occassional high water damage to having the natural beauty of the creek spoiled, then they should have it.

The corps has built itself one of the greatest self-perpetuating bureaus in the federal government. It always has projects in the planning stage that will keep it in business as long as there are streams, bays and canals.

CORTE MADERA CREEK is far from the only project that the corps has under study. There is a study authorized on Novato Creek. The Petaluma River provides a never-ending source of study and dredging projects for the corps.

Many persons feel that the Corps of Engineers is infallible and that when the corps decides on a project, it will be the best.

Recently I Read in two articles how the corps had brought Mississippi River boats into Oklahoma and how it had tamed the mighty Missouri River.

I grew up in the Missouri River valley and read enough history to know that the Mississippi River boats formerly went up the Arkansas River into Kansas. The Missouri River was always described as "too thick to drink and too thin to plow."

The corps put levees or dikes along the Mississippi River, thinking that if narrowed the river, it would carry its silt out to sea. The river has carried much silt into the Gulf of Mexico, as any map will show, but it also deposited in it its own channel. Now the bottom of the river is higher than the surrounding land if some places. We have yet to see the Corps of Engineers come up with a solution to that problem.

TILLAMOOK BAY in Oregon is an example which the corps hates to mention. Originally the bay had a long off-shore bar ending in a high mound of sand. A city, Bay Ocean, complete with hotel water system and streets, was built on it. The bay was a source of delicious oysters.

The corps used the same technique of narrowing the channel, hoping to deepen it for ocean-Going ships. Instead it changed the effect of the tidal currents, cutting away at Bay City. The remains of the hotel were more than half a mile out into the ocean and few houses remained in the city after a few years. Then one winter storm cut a mile and a half swath through the off-shore bar, leaving the few remaining residents of Bay Ocean on a small island. The oyster beds were permanently destroyed.

I'M JUST POINTING out these things so that everyone won't stand in awe of the Corps of Engineers. They can and have made mistakes.

If residents of Marin County want their streams turned into concrete ditches, let them. If the creek, as it goes through Ross, San Anselmo and Fairfax is such a hazard, maybe it should be a ditch.

If Novato Creek, where it is joined by Warner Creek, and Pacheco Creek, should be concreted the five miles to San Pablo Bay, the corps could do it. The Novato Creek Committee may have other ideas.

In this day when people are beginning to realize that their environment can be saved, any project should be examined not only by the Corps of Engineers, but also by the residents of the area.

Welfare Reform Plan In Trouble

By ROBERT P. HEY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The massive reform that President Nixon seeks in the United States' tottering welfare system is in very deep trouble in Congress.

The defection of key Senator Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., means it is almost certain that Congress will defeat a core element of the Nixon proposal: supplementary payments to the working poor.

The President has labeled his sweeping welfare reform proposal the most important domestic bill in Congress. In his State of the Union MESsage Jan. 20, he pressed again for its passage, as he had done previously.

Yet it now appears unlikely, in this increasingly political election year, that Congress will pass the Nixon bill to overhaul the welfare system — despite the growing criticism heaped on the welfare system. Congress might, however, approve changes far more modest than those proposed by President Nixon.

From all sides comes an avalanche of criticism of the present patchwork system — from welfare recipients and taxpayers, experts and laymen, liberals and conservatives. It is charged at once with costing too much, and with providing benefits that are too low. It also is inequitable, critics say: benefits are far higher in wealthy northern states than in poor southern ones.

The number of Americans on welfare rolls continues to climb. Now there are 14 million. Everybody agrees major changes must be made, but, for the second successive Congress, it appears such drastic revision is out of the question. For the second consecutive time a major welfare reform bill has passed the House of Representatives after weeks of hearings in the House Ways and Means Committee. But once again the bill is foundering in the tough-minded Senate Finance Committee, which is dominantly conservative.

Led by Senator Russell B. Long. D-La., the committee majority says in effect that the Nixon measure is poorly conceived. Senator Long holds that by establishing a national minimum welfare benefit level and by paying benefits to the working poor, the Nixon administration would be ballooning welfare rolls beyond today's level.

He says the Nixon bill would, in effect, add many people to the rolls, and then look around to see what jobs they can be helped to get. What ought to be done, he says, is to make jobs available to the poor who need them.

The Nixon welfare proposal has been in deepening trouble in the Senate for months. Initially, support for passage came from a fragile coalition of Senate conservatives who liked the section requiring able-bodied welfare recipients to work; and liberals who supported the higher benefits and guaranteed minimum income — the same amount in every state.

The coalition came unglued in December during the last days of the 1971 congressional session. When conservatives gained passage of a bill that required many able-bodied adults on welfare to work or lose benefits conservative support for the broad Nixon proposals flagged.

But liberals hoped for Senate approval of the bill anyway. Senator Ribicoff held a key to passage, they thought; they saw him as the only Democratic senator on the finance committee with the knowledge and experience in welfare issues to lead the fight on the Senate floor for the wide-ranging bill.

That floor fight has promised for months to be essential to passage. The bill seems certain to come out of committee stripped of income supplement and the minimum nationwide benefit provisions. Without Senator Ribicoff's leadership on both issues, their chances of success are slim.

Until two weeks, Ribicoff had led the fight for income supplements in the finance committee. He has sought generally to increase the minimum income that the bill would guarantee both to working and nonworking poor.

But, Jan. 28, he flabbergasted the dismayed both the Nixon administration and liberal Democrats by announcing opposition to the nationwide income-supplements program. He indicated it would be too expensive to set up, and instead recommended that Congress establish test programs of income subsidies to Americans who hold jobs but are poor.

In recent weeks the members of the finance committee had been shocked to hear estimates of huge numbers of Americans who would be eligible for welfare under various guaranteed-income proposals, including income supplements.

Recently the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare had estimated that Senator Ribicoff's proposed income floor — which eventually would rise to $4,000, would make some 70 million Americans eligible for welfare assistance.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

NEA, CTA Close Ranks For Political Campaigns

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

As Governor Reagan was welcoming a new educators' association at its first convention in Hollywood last week, the old-(ine NEA and CTA were cranking up for what they hope will be their biggest political year.

Reagan addressed the National Association of Professional Educators, which had its genesis in the disenchantment among teachers with hard-line union militance that brought on the 1970 Los Angeles school strike. He told the members that he accepted the invitation to speak "with the understanding that your group consists of educators who agree that the school system belongs to the people of a free society. We both know there are those who feel otherwise."

The governor left no doubt as to who he considers "feel otherwise" as he zeroed in on the National Education Association for "measuring educational excellence by the amount of money spent" and suggested this "is aimed at promoting a desire for federalized support of schools leading to a nationalized school system."

ON THE SAME DAY Reagan spoke to NAPE, the California Teachers Association and NEA announced they had come to terms on settlement of a dues arrears suit, just on the eve of scheduled trial.

NEA in its annual financial report said CTA's Southern Section (since abolished) owed $1,774,100 and United Teachers of Los Angeles (since expelled from CTA but still recognized by NEA) owed $241,000 in NEA dues collected but never remitted to the national office.

CTA's Southern Section had signed a note covering $464,000 in unremitted 1970 dues. NEA sued CTA for $1,310,100 its Southern Section collected and did not remit in 1971. The out-of-court settlement calls for payment of $1,100,000 by CTA over a five-year period.

NEA and its biggest state affiliate, CTA, needed to end their squabbling over dues to close ranks for election-year political activity. NEA hopes to exceed that of 1970, when, according to the NEA Reporter of Nov. 27 of that year: "Helped by an NEA-interpreted voting record, published for the first time in the association's 113-year history, teachers rang doorbells, conducted seminars, and canvassed school buildings in an unprecedented effort to make their influence felt in national elections."

HOW CTA IS organizing its end of the political activity was indicated in an announcement from Burlingame (but a different street address from that of CTA's headquarters) two weeks before the dues suit was settled.

It reported reorganization of the Association for Better Citizenship, "voluntary, non-profit, non-partisan political-action group for California teachers," with "an estimated budget in excess of a half-million dollars" to make it "one of the most powerful political-action groups in the state."

"ABC expects to provide funds and campaign workers" in all state Assembly, state Senate and congressional contests, according to the announcement.

Only mention of CTA in the announcement was that Matt Kier, former director of CTA's legislative contact program, had been named fulltime ABC administrator. But little doubt of ABC's real status was left by the list of board members, which included Jack D. Rees, identified as "executive officer of Burlingame," and L. Gordon Bittle, identified as "a teacher at Bidwell School, Antioch."

WHILE NAPE, in the somewhat euphoric atmosphere of its first convention, was talking about restoring public confidence in schools and teachers, NEA was talking about political action. And CTA — through its creature, ABC — was talking about putting its money and muscle into election campaigns.

FOOTNOTE: While NEA still refers to itself as a professional organization, the U.S. Department of Labor ruled recently that it is a labor union by legal definition.

Shift Of Noise Costs Sought

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation that would shift the cost of reducing freeway noise in areas near schools from local school boards to the state Department of Public Works has been introduced by Sen. David Roberti.

The Los Angeles Democrat said Monday increased noise levels on Los Angeles freeways are "seriously interfering" with "the learning process" in nearby schools and steps must be taken to correct the problem.

He said local school boards lack the money to take corrective action.

This low-mileage 4-Dr. custom LeSabre 4-Dr. hardtop was traded by local lady who felt the car was too large and wanted something just a little smaller.

The LeSabre is the least expensive of our full-sized Buicks and offers the famous Buick ride, yet affords the owner economy along with his luxury.

This all-white LeSabre has all the LeSabre custom extras like automatic, radio, heater, power steering and brakes plus GM factory air conditioning. 9D121625.

Reagan Unloads On Judge 'Bias'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan, never timid about castigating the legislative branch of government, is making it increasingly clear he doesn't consider the judiciary any sacred cow either.

Reagan, escalating his beef with the courts, announced Tuesday the state will disqualify one particular Sacramento judge every time a welfare case comes before him.

In response, the judge indicated he felt Reagan was basing his criticism on lack of knowledge about the judicial process.

Senate Democratic Leader George R. Moscone, a San Francisco attorney, contended if a lawyer had said the same things about the judge that Reagan did, "I daresay he would have spent five days in the cooler."

In other developments at the governor's weekly news conference, Reagan called a proposal that state officials periodically file financial statements with him to avoid conflicts of interest "a pretty good idea."

The governor endorsed the proposal acknowledging it might help him to determine if officials have acquired a conflict of interest after their appointment.

The proposal came from Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, who recently suggested that to more carefully protect against possible conflicts, appointed state officials should submit periodic financial reports to Reagan.

Asked whether he believed such reports should be made public, the governor said: "We have very few things that we don't make public. I don't see any reason. We have never tried to withhold anything that's of public interest."

Later, assistant press secretary Edwin Gray called newsmen to say Reagan might have "left the impression" he thought such financial information should be made public, but didn't really mean to.

"He believes this kind of information should be provided to the governor's office to assist him in carrying out his appointment responsibilities and that the information should not be used in any other way," Gray said.

The Sacramento judge whom Reagan criticized is William Gallagher, a 51-year-old balding jurist who presides over the Sacramento County Superior Court and has heard most of the major welfare litigation brought against the state. Many of his rulings have gone against the Reagan administration, and the governor became so angry at one last Thursday he accused the judge of "judicial misconduct" and "a flagrant violation of public trust."

Reagan acknowledged at his weekly news conference Tuesday that this "was not a proper term to use (and) should not have been used." He said he was using "laymen's" language when actually in "legal jargon" the phrase "judicial misconduct" is too strong.

But the governor said the state will move to disqualify Gallagher "on any of the cases he is involved in welfare" because "we just don't believe there is a total lack of bias" in his decisions.

The state can automatically disqualify a judge from a case simply by expressing a fear it will not receive a fair hearing. Since last FRiday the state ha: disqualified Gallagher in two cases.

It is the second time in less than a month Reagan has sharply criticized a California court. On Jan. 18, he charged that the California Supreme Court "was lacking in statesmanship" and "fell short of accepting responsibility" in returning the issue of reapportionment to the legislature.

Tax Structure May Face State Probe

The California Supreme Court's landmark decision on school financing may prompt an examination by the Legislature of inequities in all areas of the state's tax structure, State Controller Houston I. Flournoy said yesterday.

Addressing a convention of the state's county auditor-controllers at the Holiday Inn in San Rafael, Flournoy said, "The consequences of this decision are really stupendous." I think it will do a great deal toward improving the equity of the property tax across the board."

He said he thought the decision, handed down Aug. 30 of last year, would have a "ricochet effect" and prompt an examination of the equity of financing other programs through the use of the property tax — particularly the financing of welfare programs.

He pointed to a disparity in property tax rates spent on welfare in Orange and in San Francisco counties as an example of the inequity of the system. In Orange County, he said, 25 cents per $100 assessed valuation is spent on welfare as opposed to a San Francisco figure of $1.25.

The Supreme Court, in its decision, ruled on a case brought by a group of Los Angeles residents who alleged that the method of financing schools by local property taxes was unconstitutional because it penalized children who lived in poorer counties.

The court's decision was not a final judgment and was merely an order for a trial of the case to proceed in a lower court. If the trial court subsequently finds the present system of public school financing to be unconstitutional, the court said that provisions should be made for an orderly transition between the old tax finance system and whatever system is devised to take its place.

Flournoy said that when the legislature begins to work out the alternate method of financing schools, "I suspect it will not be done in isolation from other fields."

"I always regret it," he said, "when a court has To come along and tell the legislature to do something that it ought to have had sense enough to do before."

The convention will continue through tomorrow.

Four Judges File In June Election

Only Marin's four incumbent judges as of this morning had filed declarations of intent to run for judicial office June 6. Deadline for filing declarations was 5 p.m. today.

Declarations must be filed in the county elections office in the Civic Center. The requirement applies only to judicial candidates, who cannot run in the June 6 primary election unless they comply with the requirement.

The incumbents who have filed are Superior Court judges Samuel W. Gardiner, Joseph G. Wilson and Henry J. Broderick and Municipal Court Judge David Menary Jr.

Only Gardiner and Wilson are seeking reelection. Broderick and Menary were appointed to their present seats and will be seeking election for the first time.

The filing fees, 1 per cent of the annual salary, are $350.80 for superior court judge and $322.73 for municipal court judge.

Cash Is Taken

Cash totaling $60 was stolen in a burglary yesterday at Redwood Cleaners, 211 Western Avenue, Petaluma. Police said a window screen was pried loose to gain entry.

Error In Report On Land Use

The Independent-Journal erred yesterday in reporting that a planned 630-unit development on 7.5 acres at 200 Tamal Vista Boulevard was reduced to 540 by the Corte Madera Planning Commission and that the commission had failed to take action on the apartment proposal.

The developer who wanted to build on the site, Vail and Associates of Mill Valley, had had the land zoned for apartments, with the owners' consent, but never presented a formal development plan because it failed to buy the land.

Zoning then was changed back to light industrial by the town council Monday.

The site would have held about 100 apartments. The larger development erroneously mentioned yesterday is the Meadowsweet Station development planned by an Orinda developer. The planning commission cut the number of units from 630 to 540.

Ban On Women At Annapolis Will Be Fought

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congressional supporters of the drive to give women equal rights have pledged to fight a Navy decision to continue barring women from the U.S. Naval Academy.

Navy Secretary John N. Chafee rejected Tuesday congressional nominations of two women to the academy. He said the academy at Annapolis, Md., was intended to train men for sea duty and pointed out there are laws against women being assigned to sea duty.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., denounced Chafee's ruling saying it amounted to "discrimination on the basis of sex."

The other member of Congress in addition to Javits who has nominated a woman to the academy, Rep. Jack H. McDonald, R-Mich., siad he would introduce legislation to force all U.S. service academies to accept women. He described Chafee's reasoning as "ridiculous."

'Representative' Grand Jury Sought In 1972-73

In an effort to place a variety of Marin citizens on the 1972-73 county grand jury, letters have been sent to 94 groups and organizations asking nominees.

About a dozen names have been submitted so far for the 19-member jury, which both investigates local governmental agencies and returns indictments.

Letters have gone out to such diverse groups as unions, property owners' associations, women's clubs, parent-teacher associations, lodges, veterans' organizations, college student bodies and professional groups.

The same type of letter also was sent out last year after superior court judges decided they could no longer rely on their own acquaintances and personal recommendations for grand jury appointments.

The year's letter, signed by Henry J. Broderick, presiding judge of the superior court, asked for two nominations from each organization reached.

Since the grand jury is picked by drawing from no more than 30 names, Broderick explained that the superior court judges would cut the list of nominees down to the legal maximum.

Broderick said the jurists would endeavor to give consideration to geographical, social, sex, economic, age and race distribution of the county so that the jury finally selected would be as nearly representative of the community as possible.

The current grand jury will serve through June, a change from a former system of having the juries serve on a calendar year basis. Marin judges decided about two years ago to make a switch to a fiscal term so that the grand jury would be on the same basis as other county programs.

Louise Knew Who He Was

LONDON (UPI) — The 83-year-old white-haired man's eyes twinkled as he challenged a 4-year-old fellow passenger to a wheelchair race down the corridor of Heathrow Airport terminal.

"No," said Louise Brat. "You'll win because you're bigger than me."

Did she know who the white-haired gentleman was? Louise was asked.

"Of course I do," she said. "He's the man with the baggy trousers and walking stick."

She was right, it was Charlie Chaplin, arriving with his wife, Oona, for an appearance in connection with showing of a series of Chaplin classic movies.

Chaplin sometimes uses a wheelchair as a result of breaking an ankle a few years ago.

Prof Proposes Junior Freeways

LOS ANGELES — Harassed motorists, faced with car-jammed streets and growing public resistance to city-slashing freeways, may find some future relief through a network of "junior freeways."

The junior freeway concept calls for the separation of major intersections by overpasses to break traffic bottlenecks common to most cities.

Dr. Slade Hulbert of the University of California at Los Angeles Institute of Transportation and Traffic Engineering, an early advocate of junior freeways, explains the idea with a Los Angeles example.

ONE EXAMPLE

"Wilshire Boulevard and Western Avenue form one of the key intersections in the city, characterized during rush hours by long lines of cars waiting for the lights to change," he says.

"If we lifted the Wilshire Boulevard traffic above Western Avenue by building a simple overpass, cars could move in a continuous flow along both major arteries."

The immediate relief for motorists at this one intersection could be multiplied by extending the junior freeways along the city's main major streets and thoroughfares.

There are other sound arguments for the junior freeway, says the UCLA traffic expert, especially:

LESS COST

Simple overpasses could be erected quickly, causing minimum disruption to surface traffic. With intelligent preplanning, covered excavations and modular construction methods, Dr. Hulbert believes that an overpass could be put up inside eight hours, with traffic detoured during that period.

The junior freeways could feed traffic smoothly into and away from standard freeways or could be converted for use by rapid transit systems.

"If the junior freeways are to work successfully, however," emphasizes Dr. Hulbert, "their development and planning must involve social scientists, commercial business interests, and local citizens living along the route."

Office Is Added

A new addition to the services featured at Town & Country Village in Strawberry is John Klepstad's Farmer's Insurance Group Office.

A long time resident of Tiburon, Klepstad offers a complete insurance program including life, and casualty for Marin County residents. He said he welcomes any questions concerning insurance programs and will offer a complete claim service for Farmers Insurance policy holders.

Kelpstad, a native of Minnesota, is a graduate of the University of Minnesota, and a former Air Force colonel.

Lobbying Being Taught

DAVIS—Lobbyist Norman Woodbury will teach a course in his specialty for University of California Davis Extension this winter. Woodbury says, "You get an A in my class if your bill lands on the Governor's desk for signature" — and he means it.

His students draft bills which, if they pass scrutiny by the class, are presented to the legislature for action.

Some hard work preceds this step. Woodbury's class learns how to use the tools of the legislalure, how bills get into committee, what pressures are exerted to push or kill a bill, and finally how to write what may be a highly intricate piece of legislation.

They study the personal quirks of the legislators themselves, and may be called before committees if their work is on its way to becoming law.

TIME FOR MARDI GRAS

A Little Of New Orleans In Marin

A breath of New Orleans embraces Town & Country Village at Mardi Gras time. At Strawberry you'll enjoy yourself by doing nothing at all. Enjoy the many delights of the Village.

Smugglers, pirates, traders, and remittance men constitute the highly flavored jambalaya at the Ancient Mariner. Mardi Gras exhibits a frankness or simple awareness between man and woman; an unpuritanical liking for things of the senses, and a fondness for games of chance.

Strong Louisiana coffee will be quaffed in the Town & Country Village by visitors to the continental-style Caravansary. Here, Chicory coffee, strong, black and free flowing, meets the test of true coffee (the spoon must stand up in the cup). Drip pot brews for before, during, and after meals await the visitors call.

Beauty, vanity and fun grace the walkways during Mardi Gras. Early morning duels follow evenings at revelry. Street dancing and carnivals are special attractions. As in Vieux Carre, painters and craftsmen will hold outdoor exhibits along Pirates Alley and banquettes (sidewalks) of Town & Country Village.

King of all carnival kings is Rex, Lord of MisRule. Shortly before midnight he and his court call upon Comus. Their visit signals the start of Lent and underscores the Latin origin of Carne Vale — farewell to the flesh.

Beneath chandeliers at Kublai Khan, vintage wines and gourmet delights are featured daily. Here is no place for counting vitamins or calories. Kublai Khan offers gastronomic joy. Patrons enjoy the delicate lift of aromatic herbs, a delicacy of taste, piquant combinations and mouthwatering ingredients in a superlative menu.

From the backwoods of frontier living and Indian lore comes the delicate aroma of barbeque from the Hick'ry Pit. Inside, barbecue of ham, ribs and chicken awaits diners.

Bananas, coconuts and artichokes from Watsonville are stacked on the Safeway docks while unique fabrics and linens arrive at K. Myers Fabrics and at Eleanor Green's. Hides become contemporary fashions at Rawhide Leathers and Frank's Shoes.

"Le Jazz Hot" sounds permeate the air from Marin Music Centre and Town & Country TV. Jazz inspired from French quadrilles and Italian arias, fieldhand tunes, and even African voodoo provides the wail and pound of new music.

L'Entree Caterers plan scores of private parties, picnics, and banquets. Cheeses and country style hams are prepared daily at Hickory Farms. Elegant wines and beverages wait selection at Village Liquors. Walther's Bakery is busy turning out delectable pastries and festive party treats.

Mardi Gras is fashion time. A fashion show, Dixieland style, will be a feature attraction at Littlechix on Saturday, Feb. 12. Colors and styles reflecting the new feelings of freedom will grace the showrooms of Alvin Duskin, The Carousel, Gigi's and Little Daisy. Comfort and style fashions await the man at Carlton's and C. Partan's. The Village Florist, Leon Alvey, an artist in flowers, begins at 5 a.m. preparing special gifts for special occasions and special people — flowers providing the color, charm and feelings of Mardi Gras.

Visitors to the Village at Mardi Gras time will find shopping adventures in gift boutiques: the Golden Cherub, Fiesta Candle, Boutique Mimi, RoJeans, Telford's Pipe Shop, Golden Gate Coins and Stamps, and Lamp Array.

Mardi Gras is festival time. Traditionally the last fling before the Lenten period of sackcloth and ashes. Mardi Gras is the time for fun, frivolity, camaraderie, graciousness and splendor.

Village Offers Valentine Treats

Valentine's Day is a special time.

It is a traditional occasion for sharing thoughts, gifts and experiences with the special people in our lives.

For thoughts, the traditional and contemporary valentines may be found at RoJean's Hallmark Shop and Ideal Stationers. Candy Valentines by Blums are featured at the Village Sweet Shoppe. Flower ideas are found at the Village Florist. Perhaps a vintage wine from the Village Liquors or a mellow tobacco gift from Telford's Pipe Shop will delight someone's Valentine.

DeBeau's Jewelers offers a special place to visit, displaying the gifts that may be treasured for a lifetime — fine watches, elegant jewelry, and presents of silver and gold.

The Little Daisy offers an answer for the person who is perplexed as to a choice of a gift, a style or color. It's a Little Daisy Gift Certificate.

During Valentine Shopping Days in Town & Country Village, Kublai Khan has chosen a special treat — a champagne lunch with a choice of coulotte steak or almond chicken entree for just $2.25.

Moscow To Become A Model City

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet capital, presently a checkerboard of the crumbling old and utilitarian new, is to become a model Communist city by the 1990s. So say Moscow's city planners.

Most of the Czarist-era log houses will vanish in the next two decades. Few Muscovites will mourn their passing—the outside charm delighting the tourist eye is little solace for frequent lack of running water within.

The new master plan for the development of Moscow protects history and ecology. A ban on industrial construction, and enlargement of an already vast green belt, will combat pollution.

Mikhail Posokhin, Moscow's chief architect, says:

"The city will be an original blend of the lively thoroughfares and squares with the quiet lanes and side streets of old Moscow. The relics of old architecture and whatever the genius of the Russian people created will be carefully preserved."

Implementation of the plan, approved by the Soviet Communist Party and government, has begun. Its goals are a utopia of modern city planning.

"To make Moscow a model Communist city is the bounden duty of the entire Soviet people," general secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev told the 24th Communist Party Congress last spring.

The plan bars new industry of any kind within a radius of three miles from the Kremlin, the traditional city center.

Some 200 existing enterprises will be scrapped or rebuilt to conform to contemporary social and ecological needs.

The plan calls for demolition of all dilapidated and ill-equipped housing and the preservation of "the historical and architectural image of Moscow."

The city limits will be frozen and the population, currently just over 7 million, will be held to no more than 7.5 million. Authorities govern who can and cannot live in Moscow and other major Soviet cities.

"Moscow will not grow territorially and the number of people working here will not increase," Posokhim said recently.

"The plan's strictest order is that no plants, factories, scientific, designing and educational institutes are to be built anew or expanded in Moscow and in the forest-park zone," Posokhin said.

The forest-park zone ringing the city limits is now 440,000 acres, almost twice the size of Moscow itself. The plan calls for expanding the zone to 687,500 acres.

"The city's economy will develop through the reconstruction and re-equipping of existing enterprises, the introduction of modern achievements in science and technology and of progressive techniques," Posokhin said.

"Moscow's industry will specialize in precise machine-building and instrument-making and the production of quality consumer goods."

The capital is to be divided into eight zones radiating from the Kremlin. Each will have a population of 600,000 to one million plus "well-balanced conditions for work, everyday living and rest," Posokhin said.

Another 500,000 persons will live in the forest-park zone.

The plan aims to increase housing construction to the point where "each Moscow family has a separate flat with as many rooms as the number of adults in the family."

This means builders must construct 66 million square yards of housing space over the next two decades if communal dwelling —even in new buildings —is to be eliminated.

Most apartment houses will be 9 to 16 stories high. Outlying areas may have blocks reaching up to 25 stories if architects deem them compatible with surrounding development.

Public transport and roadway improvements should make no home-to-work journey within Moscow longer than 30 to 35 minutes, the plan says.

Rents will continue to be five to six per cent of the family budget, among the lowest in the world.

An Answer To The Dream Of Every Hostess—Good Coffee

Hildy Sarkissian, owner of the Caravansary — the coffee, tea and spice store in Town & Country Village — has a few suggestions for homemakers designed to insure coffee success.

Mrs. Sarkissian recommends the selection of a favorite blend of freshly roasted coffee beans ranging from Mocha Java, Colombian and Viennese to Jamaica Blue Mountain. Next, she says, grind just before serving.

Movie Crews At Shopping Center

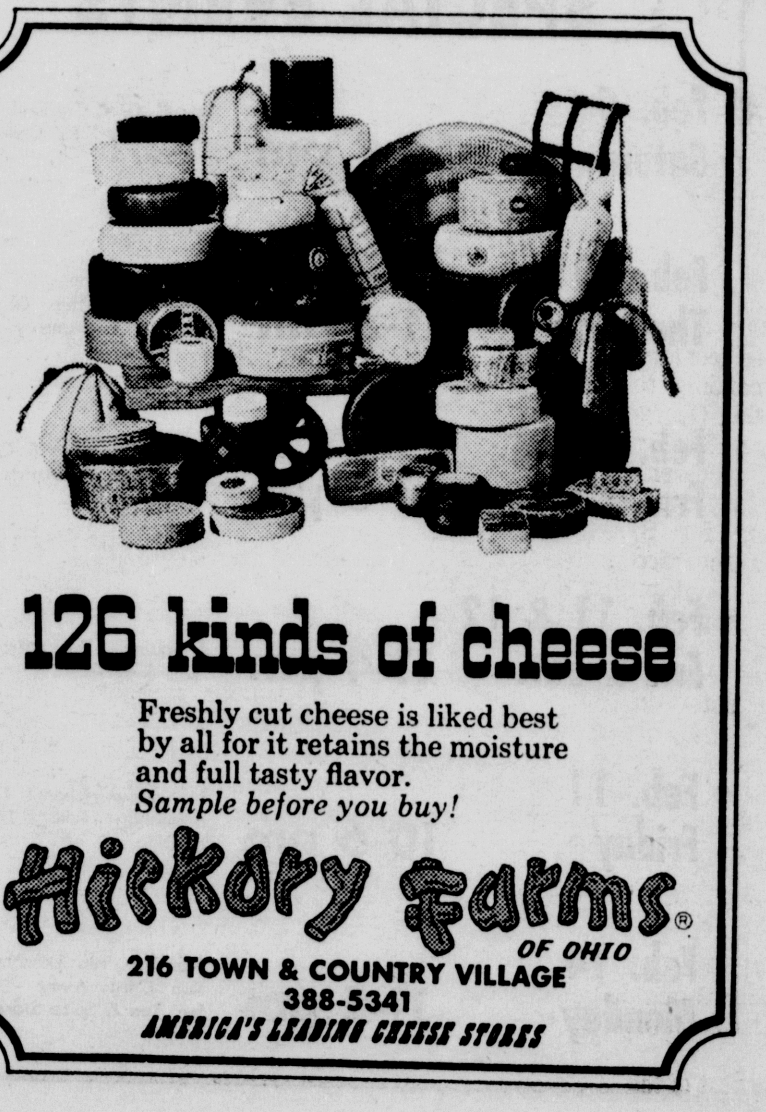
Stanley Toy, longtime entertainer in his own right and owner of Kublai Khan, has been providing meals daily for the production crews. Patrons of the Ancient Mariner also have been pleased to find Redford in their midst on rainy evenings.

To date, the movie's settings have included a ticker tape parade on California Street in San Francisco, scenes in Sonoma and the Joan Hitchuck ranch. One scene is planned in the vicinity of the Carousel in Town & Country Village.



Mill Valleyan Is Queen Candidate

Andi Valo of Mill Valley has been chosen to participate in the 1972 Mardi Gras Ball as a queen candidate. She was chosen from more than 300 nominees. (See picture, page S-8.)

The theme of this year's ball — the 20th annual — to be sponsored by the Little Jim's Club Of Children's Hospital in San Francisco, is Le Bal Masque International. It will be held Feb. 12 at the Sheraton Palace Hotel in San Francisco.

Mrs. Valo will conduct several events to raise money for Children's Hospital. She held a special show at the Village featuring Gabor Szabo, Jimmy Witherspoon, Luis Gasca, and Santana, and a special party with Busby Berkeley and selected film clips, Dan Hicks and his Hot Licks, and Bobby Stevens and the Checkmates at the Mark Hopkins on Feb. 8.

A Mardi Gras with 50 booths was held at Town & Country Village. Steve Sloan of the Christy Minstrels assisted in these endeavors.

In the past, Mrs. Vala has worked with the Mastectomy Society of Marin County, Marin Catholic High School, Marin Service Club and the Baptist Seminary, on fashion shows and fund-raising events.

She is married to Dennis Valo. She owns and operates the Carousel, a women's fashion boutique in Town & Country Village in Strawberry.

She is the daughter of Mrs. Francis Hawthorne of Royal Oak, Mich.

Wracked by war, destruction, and death, the people of Bangladesh hover on the brink of disaster with an urgent call for help.

Together they staged a benefit program for Bangladesh, which was recorded in a collector's edition. All profits will go to aid the people of Bangladesh.
